

Michelle Paulman/DN

Dave Landis
State Senator from Lincoln

"Be ready to keep learning. Graduation isn't the end, it's the beginning of an education. And make learning a permanent part of your life."

Boyd Johnston
Editor of The Ideal, a conservative student newspaper

"Stop reading the D.N. now, before it's too late. And watch Rush Limbaugh religiously."

Chris Hopfensperger
Editor of the Daily Nebraskan

"Ignore Boyd Johnston."

Karen Jennings
UNL women's basketball player and two-time Big Eight player of the year

"Don't be satisfied with being average. Put in the extra work and get involved. Average is just plain boring."

ing."

Alfred "Bud" Pagel
News-editorial department chairman

"Always remember that anger is the wind that blows out the candle of the mind."

Andy Sigerson
Former ASUN president and 1992 Homecoming King

"From my perspective, I think our country and society is lacking people who stick to what they believe in. Stick by your principles and beliefs no matter what pressures you face — unless the compromise is as good as the original principle."

Sally Wise
Academic Senate President

"Make a pledge to yourself to keep on learning — take a class for fun every now and then."

Hank Duffy's bartender

Hank, following in the tradition of Nancy Reagan, didn't want to give any advice. His one word to the Daily Nebraskan — "No."

Ron Kurtenbach
UNL student and custodian, host of his own cable-access talk show

Kurtenbach wasn't able to be reached for comment, but his answering machine offered unsolicited advice:

"A quote from a Buddhist monk Muju: 'So delusion has become enlightenment. Had I not wandered unaware, how would enlightenment have opened itself to me.' And now, your comment please. Beep."

Debbie Way
Blonde University Bookstore lady

"Cash, check or charge?"

Remember that your education here has prepared you not just for a job, but to be humanitarians — to be productive, caring members of your families, your communities and your societies.

—Graham Spanier
UNL Chancellor

Open your eyes; there are a lot of things going on that you don't need to put up with. Nowadays students are so focused on getting out of school that they don't realize the crappy quality of education they're getting.

—Troy Branch
UNL football player and graduating senior

Be ready to keep learning. Graduation isn't the end, it's the beginning of an education. And make learning a permanent part of your life.
