

Jones recovering but still sidelined

First-string I-back Calvin Jones continued to sit out of practice Thursday, NU football coach Tom Osborne said.

Jones, who has been out with a bruised heel, was feeling better, Osborne said. But he said he didn't want Jones to risk aggravating the injury.

"Yet, if we were to have a game today, Jones would definitely play," he said.

Quarterback Tommie Frazier returned to full speed Thursday, Osborne said. Frazier left Tuesday's practice early after injuring his back.

Kevin Ramaekers and Billy Wade sat out with minor injuries Thursday, Osborne said.

The team looked much better in Thursday's practice than it did earlier in the week, he said.

"It was a little better practice," he said. "They practiced with more intensity."

The Huskers will conduct their last pre-season scrimmage at 12:30 p.m. Saturday. They play their first game against North Texas Sept. 4.

"I don't want players thinking if they come out as first-string quarterback or second-string quarterback that that's how it is (for the rest of the year)," he said. "This is a very important scrimmage."

it could cause some major problems," Osborne said. "But in our scrimmages we haven't seen a huge difference in the flow of the game, and we have had Big Eight officials working them."

The rule's biggest impact may be on Husker equipment manager Glen Abbott, who plans on bringing additional pants and jerseys when Nebraska is on the road.

"Carrying more jerseys could be a problem," Abbott said, "especially if they strictly enforce the rule, because we just don't have that many extra jerseys, and we can't exactly have an offensive lineman wearing No. 20."

Other rule changes include:

- The guard-around, or "fumble-rookie," now is illegal.

- The penalty for offensive pass interference no longer will include loss of down.

- Unsportsmanlike conduct now will include vulgar and abusive language.

defense to play."

He's even come with a name for the defense — the "Black Attack" — using one of the school colors.

"That's who we are," he said. "Now, we've got to go out and introduce ourselves to some people."

For a change, Stull is more concerned about the offense, particularly the running backs, heading into the Sept. 11 opener against Illinois at home.

Missouri was dead last in the NCAA in rushing last year and two weeks before the first game Stull doesn't really have a starting tailback. Last year's starter, Joe Freeman, had eligibility problems and didn't begin practicing until Monday.

Missouri, Stull thinks the personnel is ready for it. He's recruited for speed and has eight defensive starters who can run a 4.6-second 40-yard dash, complemented with three massive players on the front line.

"You've got to have some up front guys who can create chaos and you've got to have some speed guys who can run and hit and arrive at the ball in a bad mood," Hall said.

"We've got the speed players and the 295-pound players that charge upfield, like rhinos through the brush. I like our chemistry and it's a fun

Winsett

"I have more confidence this year," she said. "I know the defense, the people around me, the plays, and the position. I just need to concentrate on my skills and not as much on learning this year."

Winsett said she learned a lot over the summer when she participated in the U.S. Olympic Festival. Winsett's North team won the bronze medal after losing to Husker teammate Nikki Stricker's team, which won the gold medal.

"That helped me tremendously," Winsett said. "I could compare myself with the older players there. I played against some intense competition.

"It prepared me physically and mentally for the pre-season," she said.

Pettit said Winsett will receive more playing time. Winsett said she hopes to make the best of it.

"I want to be a consistent outside hitter and a passer that doesn't miss," she said.

scouting service, agreed. He said Markowski was one of the top 10 surprises in the entire country this summer.

"He's a tremendous athlete, a great competitor," Coleman said. "He gets up and down the floor really well."

"He can come in and be a very effective player in the Big Eight."

Markowski sees himself playing either a power- or small-forward position at Nebraska.

"If I can put on 30 pounds, I think I can come in as a freshman and make an impact."

With Markowski joining Ideus, Coleman said Nebraska had a good start on the recruiting season.

"It gives them two Big Eight players and lets them turn their attention to some of the national players they are after," Coleman said. "Now they can go out and say the best players in our state want to be here. That's great."

Seles recuperating from April stabbing

NEW YORK (AP) — Monica Seles says she was so traumatized by being stabbed in the back four months ago that she hasn't even been able to look at the wound in the mirror.

"It's not something I want to do," she said in an interview with Diane Sawyer on ABC's "PrimeTime Live."

"It just reminds me too much of what actually happened."

In an interview aired Thursday night, Seles told Sawyer that she

"lost everything" when she was stabbed at a tournament on April 30 in Hamburg, Germany, and now, "I have to start out from scratch."

Recuperating in Vail, Colo., from surgery to repair the wound in her right shoulder, Seles said she hasn't hit a ball "for a long time and ... for me to get back to any level is going to take a lot of hours."

Seles, however, vowed that she would overcome the trauma from the wound and said she bore no grudge against her assailant.
