Dykes

Tech offense.

But the key to competing with Nebraska, Dykes said, will be in the trenches.

"The thing you have to do is establish the line of scrimmage," Dykes said. "It's extremely difficult. They really are big."

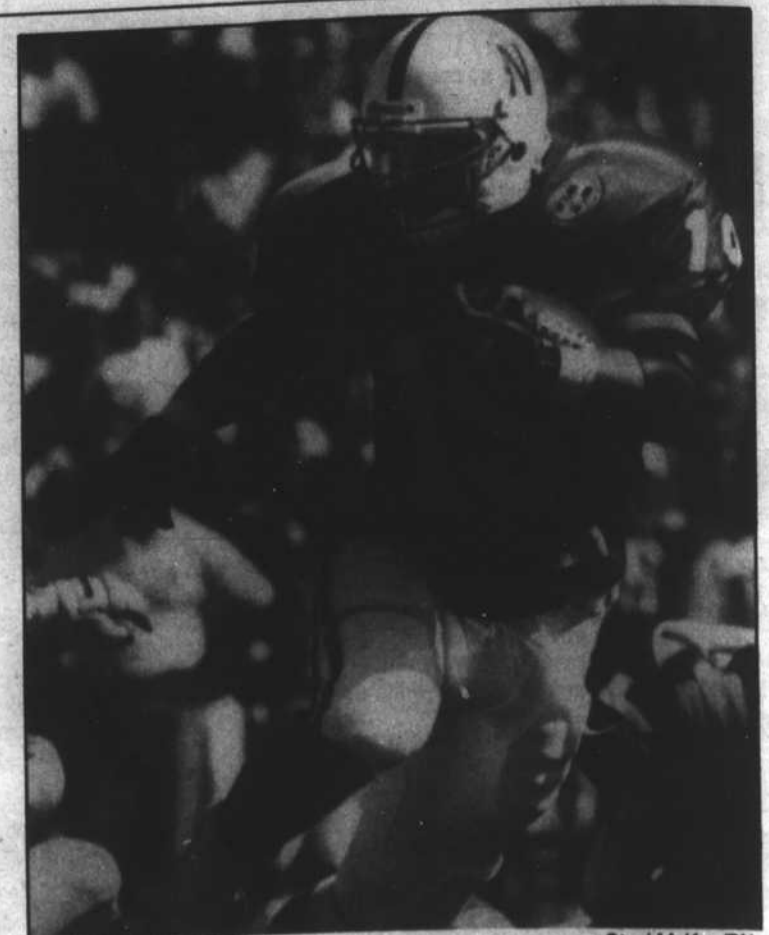

Dykes said he didn't think Nebraska would be affected too much by the injuries to Calvin Jones and quarterback Tommie Frazier.

"They're deep," he said. "They put a guy (Brook Berringer) in there, and he was prolific in throwing the football. They've got good backups at all their positions."

"We've got to play the best we can, play to our best level. Everything is bigger and stronger and faster than we saw last Saturday. And there's a whole lot more of them."

HUSKER NOTE

Nebraska coach Tom Osborne said that starting quarterback Tommie Frazier continues to recover from an ankle sprain. Frazier took part in most of the practice, but left five minutes early because of soreness. "He did pretty well," Osborne said. "It looks like he'll be able to play. Whether or not he'll be able to start, I don't know."

Nebraska I-back Jeff Makovicka heads downfield during the Cornhuskers' 76-14 victory over North Texas Saturday. Makovicka will be part of a group of I-backs who will see plenty of action Saturday against Texas Tech.
