

Slamfest

The event, which will be at the Pla-Mor Ballroom, features local artists Mercy Rule, Sideshow, Rosebud, Urethra Franklin, Echoing Green, Klass-K and Peace Nation.

Slamfest will bring together two crowds of youth, Kauffman said, because two types of bands are playing. Klass-K and Peace Nation are rap groups, he said, while the other bands cater to a rock-oriented crowd.

Ten local youth groups, including the YWCA, Lighthouse and Upward Bound, are cosponsoring the all-ages show.

Along with the concert, Kauffman and Littlejohn will distribute a publication that describes the bands and the youth organizations involved.

Kauffman will hand the fliers out at the show and across town, he said, in hopes of sparking interest in youth about the groups.

Kauffman also is organizing a workshop for young people about music and the broadcasting industry, he said.

Kauffman has been recording for about seven years, he said.

Movement Enterprises became an official business in April, he said. His idea for the company started with his rap show on KRNU, the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's radio station.

Part of Movement Enterprise's mission will be to teach young people how to plan events such as Slamfest '93.

Plans for the second and third show are not final yet, Kauffman said, but the Oct. 23 second show will be a concert for ages 18 and under at State Fair Park.

Malice

dominal pains.

Dr. Jed Hill (Baldwin) has recently moved to the small town where Andy and Tracy live. Hill is a charismatic trauma surgeon that works at the same hospital where Tracy does volunteer work.

Follow so far? Good, because that's all that can be said without giving away too much.

Director Robert Becker ("Sea of Love," "Visionquest") forces the audience to make leap after leap of logic and virtually wastes the first half hour of the film.

Once he gets over that huge hump, however, the film begins to pick up speed — and quality. The last 45 minutes are filled with suspense.

Unfortunately, the movie's ending is rather predictable.

Kidman and Pullman do all right, but they looked like they weren't sure what to do with their roles or what direction they were supposed to take.

That's OK, though, because Becker obviously couldn't figure out what to do with them either.

Alec Baldwin is all smirks and smugness as the egotistical Hill. He's good, he knows it, and he doesn't have the slightest desire to hide it. Baldwin's character isn't a bad guy; he just isn't the squeaky-clean yutz he usually plays.

While "Malice" does have some decent suspense toward the end, it takes too much — and too long — to get there.

THE FAR SIDE

By GARY LARSON

"It's Jim Wilkins, Dave. Same as the others. Trussed up like a Christmas present with his hunting license stuffed in his mouth. ... I want this bear, Dave. I want him bad."
