Bosnians create federation

Washington (AP)—Bosnian Muslims and Croats agreed Tuesday on the framework for the establishment of a federation that could move Bosnia a significant step closer to peace.

Brokered by the United States, the agreement would bring together two of the three parties in a bloody, two-year ethnic conflict that has cost the lives of more than 200,000 people. Missing from the equation are the Bosnian Serbs, who have military control over more than half the former Yugoslav republic.

The agreement creates a federation of cantons made up of areas where the majority of the population is either Muslim or Croat. They would have equal rights, with a central government responsible for foreign affairs, national defense and commerce.

The president and vice president will be elected by a two-house legislature with the two ethnic groups alternating yearly in holding the two positions. The government will be headed by a prime minister.

The cantons will have authority over police, education, culture, housing, public services and radio and television.

Signing of the agreement was planned at the State Department in a ceremony presided over by Secretary of State Warren Christopher.

Serb leader Radovan Karadzic announced in Moscow an agreement to open the airfield at Tuzla in Bosnia and said the first relief plane to the city would be Russian. The Serbs are under threat of NATO air strikes if they refuse to allow opening of the airport by next Monday.

The agreement in Washington was reached after four days of intensive negotiations by Muslim and Croatian leaders.

Croatian Foreign Minister Mate Granic said earlier in the day the talks were in their final stages.

Israel releases 500 prisoners

Hebron Occupied West Bank (AP)—Israel released more than 500 Palestinian prisoners Tuesday to coax the PLO back to peace talks suspended after the Hebron mosque massacre, and said another 500 will be freed by the weekend.

"I think the Israelis are releasing us now to make the Palestinians happy," freed prisoner Wael Salameh, 38, said when he arrived in Hebron. "This is not a real step for peace."

Samir Ghosheh, a member of the PLO's ruling Executive Committee, dismissed the release as "irrelevant to the real issue of providing protection for our people."

He called it "cosmetic surgery" to dampen the violence that has swept the occupied territories and parts of Israel since Friday's massacre.

The PLO won't resume peace talks with Israel unless "certain guarantees are provided" to protect Palestinians living under occupation, he said.

Israeli sources were optimistic the suspended talks will resume following Prime Minister Yitzhak Rabin's offer of a package of concessions that go partway toward meeting PLO demands.

Western and Arab diplomats in Tunis, Tunisia, the PLO's headquarters, said Israel's concessions include strengthening a Palestinian police force being deployed under the Sept. 13 PLO-Israeli peace accord in what will be self-rule areas in Gaza and the West Bank town of Jericho. Israel also would disarm settlers in those areas.

Rabin also offered to allow international observers into the territories for the first time since Israel captured them in the 1967 Mideast War.

The PLO Executive Committee, the organization's ruling body, rejected the package early Tuesday in Tunis, saying it did not go far enough, said PLO Executive Committee member Ali Ishak.

The worst stumbling block, said Ishak, was the offer of observers. The PLO wants an armed multinational protection force in the occupied lands.

Rabin has ruled out putting the future of Jewish settlements on the agenda now.

Arafat told U.S. Secretary of State Warren Christopher by telephone that he intended to send envoys to Washington to work on reopening talks with Israel on their accord on autonomy in the West Bank city of Jericho and Gaza to the Palestinians.

Gunman shoots at van carrying Jews

New York (AP)—A van carrying Hasidic Jews home from a hospital visit to their spiritual leader was sprayed with bullets from a car Tuesday. Four people were wounded, authorities said.

Mayor Rudolph Giuliani said there was "no piece of information, hard evidence" linking the shooting to Friday's mosque massacre in the occupied West Bank, in which a Jewish settler from Brooklyn killed at least 30 Muslim worshippers.

"Obviously that's something you can't exclude, and the speculation is there," he told reporters. Earlier, he said, the shooting at the Brooklyn Bridge had stemmed from a traffic dispute.

"The driver of the vehicle says there wasn't a traffic accident of any kind," Chief of Detectives Joseph Borelli said.

Security was tightened at sensitive locations, and the FBI and Justice Department were keeping watch. The bridge was closed for several hours after the midmorning attack.

The lone gunman opened fire three times, emptying at least five rounds into the white unmarked van carrying 14 to 16 Lubavitch Hasids, police said.

Three 9mm shell casings were found on the highway ramp, leading investigators to believe they may have come from a powerful, quick-loading semi-automatic pistol.

In Washington, U.S. Attorney General Janet Reno and FBI Director Louis Freeh said they were monitoring the situation.

Police said they had no confirmed description of the van attacker, and that witnesses' descriptions were conflicting.

Earlier in the day, Giuliani said one occupant of the van had described a man "with an olive complexion."

The van was one of several vehicles filled with men returning from Manhattan Eye, Ear & Throat Hospital, where the 91-year-old leader of the Lubavitch sect, Rabbi Menachem Schneerson, was being released after cataract surgery. Schneerson was taken home by a different route, according to Lubavitch headquarters.

One of the shooting victims, Aaron Halberstam, 20, had "tremendous brain injury," and his outlook was "very poor," said Dr. Jesse Blumenthal, chief of trauma at St. Vincent's Hospital.

Two other people from the van also were brought to St. Vincent's. One was in critical condition with head wounds; the other was in good condition. A fourth was in stable condition at a Brooklyn hospital.
