MUSIC REVIEW

based on its live show. Unfortunately, its February show at Duffy's Tavern was canceled.

Lincoln fans will have to keep their eyes open, as the band continues to tour in the Midwest. In the meantime, "My Ass-Kickin' Life" will keep fans, and their neighbors, awake at night.

"My Ass-Kickin' Life"
House of Large Sizes
Columbia Records

House of Large Sizes, from Cedar Rapids, Iowa, has added to the national explosion of recordings by Midwestern bands.

"My Ass Kickin' Life," the band's debut effort, refuses a simple label. It is easy to throw it in the "grunge" pile and forget it, but there is something more involved. The '70s hard rock influence is evident, but so is an almost country feel. Or maybe it's just punk.

Whatever label you choose, this band is full of talent. Besides writing interesting songs, the guitar-based power trio makes the songs work.

The attitude of the music seems to be summed up in the memorable song "North Cedar," when the band sings "we reserve the right to burn anything."

House of Large Sizes' reputation is

So you like your music loud and pissed off, huh? And your stereo is still in shambles caused by the devastation of Mr. Nine Inch Nails himself, Trent Reznor, and his latest release, "The Downward Spiral." You thought the worst was over. You are wrong.

"March of the Pigs" is a seven-song EP that was released about a week before "The Downward Spiral," and America's favorite psychotic musician uses those seven cuts as a bridge between his last two EPs, "Broken" and "Fixed," and "The Downward Spiral."

The EP begins with the title cut, "March of the Pigs," and doesn't slow down to take a breath.

Although Reznor has steadily wandered away from the pop sounds that underlined his debut, "Pretty Hate Machine," "March of the Pigs" is not quite as raw as "Broken" or "Fixed." While it still retains that razor's edge in both searing guitars and vocals, Reznor's voice is much smoother and easier to understand. But he's still pissed off.

Whether you're a die-hard NIN fan or just someone looking for some good loud music, run to your favorite record store and pick up this EP.

"Linoma"
Compilation Compact Disc
-ism Recordings
Fire Records

Lincoln and Omaha almost meeting halfway makes "Linoma." It's the most accurate document thus far of what Nebraska has to say about music that tightly or loosely revolves around the word "rock."

The diversified nature of "Linoma" is evidence that Nebraska's most intelligent rock musicians spat out the word "grunge" like gravel dust from their mouths a long time ago.

The release represents a sketchy basis for the musically passive to associate Eastern Nebraska rock with other regional tags.

"Linoma" is a 20-band compilation with as many songs. The compact disc is available at Twisters, Recycled Sounds and The Ozone, thanks to the lip-biting patience of the sole proprietor of -ism Recordings, Dan Schlessel.

Despite a glitch at the end of The Millions' track, the compilation is well-produced and commendably packaged with local artwork by Ron Albertson and Paul Tisdale.

Sweet

He said some of the fury came from the problems he had dealing with his rising popularity. The cynicism on "Altered Beast" goes far enough to make Sweet almost guilty of his darker side.

"It's a good thing if you can hang onto your childish dreams and desires," he said. "I don't think I live in a dream world, but as I learn to understand and accept everything as I get older, I can keep a youthful attitude about it."

In relation to Sweet's personal life, the happiness and warm fuzzies in "Girlfriend" have balanced out the angst and evil in "Altered Beast."

"Yeah, I'm happy. I'm in an even keel, which is good."

Sweet will be performing two shows in his native state. He will be opening for another Midwesterner, Kansas native Melissa Etheridge, tonight at the Orpheum Theatre in Omaha. Tickets are $29. The doors open at 7 p.m., and the show starts at 8 p.m.

Sweet also will be making a special performance in Lincoln in conjunction with radio station The Planet's one-year anniversary at the Cornhusker Hotel.

Tickets are available at area Twisters record stores and are $8 with a can of food and $10 without. The canned food drive will go to support the Peoples City Mission in Lincoln. The Indians will open for Sweet. The doors will open at 8:30 p.m., with the show beginning at 9 p.m.
