ne was proud. "Our overall percentage of attendance is 77 to 80 percent capacity. The national average is only 70 percent," he said. This percentage is the highest for any university in the Midwest, Chumbley said.

The second statistic shows an increase in student ticket purchases from 11 to 19 percent of total sales.

"I'm very pleased with the increase in student ticket sales," Chumbley said. "It's better than football."

The two students who sit on the Lied Center Advisory Board and the UPC student committee were vital in his choice of events, he said.

"(The students) give me a list of things they wish to see, and I can get a sense from them early on what the student interests are," he said.

Aside from wishing for more ethnic-based dances, the students requested work associated with two notorious rock stars.

The Joffrey Ballet production "Billboards" will mix cutting-edge American choreography with the musical savvy of pop star Prince.

Chumbley said the Joffrey Ballet would complete a two-week residency to talk about its work with Prince, conducting various classes on and off campus while working with freshmen in the University Foundations program.

Also, co-founder of the legendary rock group Led Zeppelin, bassist John Paul Jones, will join stirring vocalist Diamanda Galas in support of an up-

Arnolds buy new home

LOS ANGELES (AP) — If newly reunited Roscane and Tom Arnold start getting on each other's nerves again, at least they'll have more rooms to escape to.

The TV stars are buying the house next door to their Brentwood-area home for $3 million, the Los Angeles Times reported Sunday.

They'll probably use the two-story home as a guest house or office, unidentified sources told the Times.

The early April purchase apparently had little to do with the Arnolds' coming collaborative release this fall. "It's going to be about as loud an evening as the Lied Center ever had," Chumbley laughed.

With a new program for student ticket purchases, Chumbley said it would be even easier for students to be involved in the arts.

Students already receive tickets at half price, he said, but they would save more with a subscription.

A student subscription includes tickets for a minimum of three events and rewards the buyer with an additional 10 percent discount. Also, students don't have to pay for the tickets all at once, Chumbley said.

Students can put a deposit on their tickets now, he said, and pay the difference during the first week of classes in August.

"We'll hold the tickets, and you'll get good seats," he said. "We tried to make it as easy as possible for students to buy subscriptions."

"What we want to do is get young people in here so by the time they're 20 years old, they'll be making regular appearances at the Lied," he said. "They'll develop a taste for it and bring their own children someday."

In an effort to create this new artistic generation, the Emmy Gifford Children's Theater will present a musical adaptation of Hans Christian Andersen's "Thumbelina" at the Lied in January.

From the classical to the contemporary, a host of other performers and musical artists will come to the Lied Center next season, which will close with an April 29 performance by the always-entertaining "Canadian Brass."
