Big Eight teams get poll spots

From Staff Reports

Three Big Eight teams remain ranked in this week's CNN/USA Today Coaches' poll.

Kansas, 11-2, is at No. 8 after being upset over the weekend by Iowa State. Missouri jumped up six spots to No. 14, and Iowa State jumped nine spots to No. 15 after defeating the Jayhawks.

Massachusetts remained No. 1 in the poll.

Connecticut moved up to the second spot as the Huskies switched places with North Carolina, which dropped to No. 3 even after defeating then-No. 17 Georgia Tech and then-No. 25 Clemson.

UCLA and Kentucky round out the top five. The Bruins moved up from sixth, and the Wildcats moved two spots up to fifth.

Nebraska received 22 votes to place in a tie for 33rd.

State and No. 15 Kansas.

"We know that we're beating ourselves," Aarden said. "We have a lot of potential, and once we get in a groove, we're going to surprise a lot of people."

Nebraska lost at Oklahoma and Oklahoma State last weekend.

Aarden knows she needs some improvement, and is most concerned with her free-throw shooting.

The junior from Hudson, Wis., is shooting only 47.2 percent from the line.

Aarden leads the team with 108 free-throw attempts, which can be attributed to being double- and triple-teamed because of her height advantage.

"It's no fun," Aarden said. "Sometimes it works really nice because if they triple me, then there are guards open who can hit the 3-pointers."

And Aarden should be able to take advantage during the conference season with only three other players in the Big Eight as tall as her.

"If you have two girls that can't defend you, then you can take it at them," she said.

of them starters — from last year, Nee said Nebraska's youth had been obvious in the first half of the season.

"I just feel our basketball team can get better," Nee said. "We've got young players, and I don't think all of them are playing at their best."

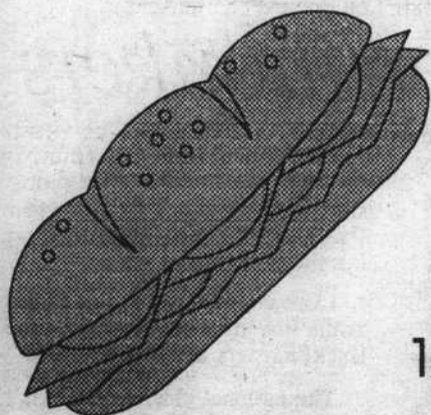

Even after the Huskers scorched Kansas State 78-56 Thursday for their first conference victory, some players didn't think the win was complete.

"We've got a lot more potential than we're showing," Wald said. "I think we played our best six minutes of ball against Appalachian State (Dec. 31) when we had to. (Thursday night) we showed signs of it, like we have all year, but we haven't put it all together."
