

Joslyn to display addition

From Staff Reports

College students who haven't yet checked out the new addition to Omaha's Joslyn Art Museum will have extra incentive to make a visit this Friday.

College Night, a free event for college students and faculty with university identification, is scheduled for 7 p.m. to 10 p.m.

The general public may also attend the event, but will have to pay the regular admission fees of $4 for adults and $2 for senior citizens and children ages 5-11.

The event will begin at 7 p.m. with a screening of "The Mystery of Picasso" in the Witherspoon Concert Hall. This award-winning film tells the story of Pablo Picasso's career.

Guided tours of the museum and its exhibits will be offered throughout the evening, beginning at 7:15. The first tour will take participants through "Face-Off: The Portrait in Recent Art," a collection of contemporary works currently housed in the Scott Pavilion.

The second tour, "The Sleep of Reason: Reality and Fantasy in the Print Series of Goya," will begin at 8 p.m. in the Joslyn Memorial Building.

At 8:30 p.m., live entertainment will be provided by the Bob Bory Blues Review in the ConAgra Atrium. Door prizes will also be distributed at this time.

Pizza and refreshments will be made available in Le Cafe Durham, which is located in the atrium.

Simpson

Larry Walklin, a broadcasting professor, said the filmmakers were free to tell Simpson's story, but their freedom was limited.

"Anyone who wishes to can provide a particular point of view," Walklin said. "But here you're in a situation where you can't present prejudicial information as fact."

If the movie suggests that Simpson is guilty and the jury decides he is innocent, the filmmakers could be guilty of slander.

Walklin said it would be different if the movie were presented as fiction.

"They would have to say that the movie is not representative of all the facts," he said. "One of the things that will probably happen is the movie will not come to any specific conclusion."

Broadcasters and filmmakers must follow the same rules as "someone standing on a street corner saying something about someone else," Walklin said.

Susan Jacobs, an assistant criminal justice professor, said there was no real risk from the movie being shown before the trial was over.

But, she added, there would have been some problems if the show would have aired before the jury had been sequestered.

"Lord knows you'd have an enormous risk without semiabstraction," she said.

Showing the movie before the trial's verdict may be legal, but many have questioned whether it is tasteful.

Javad Eskandarpour, a philosophy graduate student, said the show should be viewed as entertainment, not news.

"I think the movie will be strictly for popular consumption," Eskandarpour said.

Mitch Gonzales, a senior biology major, said he was tired of hearing about the Simpson story.

"It's been publicity overkill," Gonzales said.

Eskandarpour said people were just trying to profit from the trial, and that he wouldn't watch the show.

"I have to see evidence," he said. "The movie will be more hearsay and rumors and all those things."

But Gonzales said he would watch at least a little bit of the movie.

"From what I've seen about it, it looks kinda funny," he said.
