

Tennis coach happy with team

By Trevor Parks
Staff Reporter

For the Nebraska women's tennis team, the future looks very bright.

The Cornhuskers' top three singles players are freshmen and sophomores, and Coach Scott Jacobson can't wait to see how they do.

Jacobson said he couldn't help being optimistic about this year's team.

"At one-two-three, that's the strength of our lineup," Jacobson said. "We just put people where they belong depending on their skill level, and they are our best three players."

This past weekend the two freshmen got their first taste of collegiate competition.

No. 2 singles player Jenny Thoste, a newcomer to the team from Germany, and No. 1 singles player Annie Yang, sophomore, both went 3-0 this past weekend.

Jacobson said he was surprised to see Thoste do well since she had played on clay courts all of her life.

Another freshman, No. 3 singles player Lisa Hart, went 1-2 last weekend.

Hart lost a 3 1/2-hour, three-set loss to Cal Poly San Luis Obispo's Allison Light, 7-6, 3-6, 3-6.

Jacobson said the top three players in the lineup were turning out to be very experienced.

"The freshmen don't play like freshmen, and Annie certainly doesn't play like a sophomore," he said.

The Cornhuskers as a team finished the Washington State Quadrangular with a 1-2 mark.

Nebraska swept Lewis-Clark State 9-0 before losing to the host Cougars Saturday, 7-2.

The Huskers ended the tournament by losing a tough 5-4 match to Cal Poly San Luis Obispo Sunday.

Although the Huskers lost two matches, Jacobson said the match against Washington State was the best Nebraska played all weekend.

"The cohesiveness of the team and the high level of maturity was very important," Jacobson said. "I'm really happy with the way the girls played."

Jacobson said the match against Washington State gave the Huskers a chance to play outside, a chance they haven't had all season.

"It's critical to play outside in the elements," Jacobson said. "The next time we get outside might not be until over spring break."

Thoste will move up to the No. 2 singles spot in place of Hart this weekend, Jacobson said.

Hart will play in the No. 3 singles spot.

This weekend the Huskers travel to Omaha and will compete against Southwest Missouri State Friday and Creighton on Saturday.

Jacobson said this weekend was another building block for the remainder of the season.

"This is the first time in the last three or four years we've been to Omaha," Jacobson said. "The main thing is to continue to focus on improving."

Neumann awaits dual with UNO

By Andrew Strnad
Staff Reporter

State bragging rights will be on the line when the No. 4 Nebraska wrestling team takes on the University of Nebraska-Omaha at the Bob Devaney Sports Center Sunday night.

Cornhusker coach Tim Neumann is looking forward to the dual meet with the Mavericks.

"UNO will be exceptionally fired up for us, and besides that, they have a great team," Neumann said.

"They would beat more than half of the Division I teams, and they really want to take advantage of the chance to wrestle us."

UNO is ranked second in Division II with a 7-1 record.

Nebraska, fresh off shutouts of James Madison, Clemson and a 28-13 victory over 19th-ranked Ohio State, will first take on Northern Iowa Friday night in Cedar Falls, Iowa.

The Panthers are 3-9 on the season and are led by sixth-ranked heavyweight Justin Greenlee.

Greenlee will take on Nebraska heavyweight Tolly Thompson, who is one of three ranked Huskers.

Neumann said he hoped his team would continue to wrestle well during the final three duals of the season.

"The main thing we want to do is continue improving our technique," Neumann said. "These duals will be our last competition before a two-week layoff before Big Eights."

Nebraska concludes its dual competition with a meet at Missouri on Feb. 15.

Neumann said he hoped to fix a few technical things before the Big Eight Championships, which are to be held on March 5 at the NU Coliseum.

"If we don't get those (technique) things fixed now, we probably never will," he said.

"We usually don't do that," he said, "but we're defending national champions, and we owe it to crowds to go to these places."

Nebraska was originally scheduled to compete at Penn State on Feb. 12, but the meet was moved to tonight because of a scheduling conflict with the basketball team.

Allen said the Huskers added Penn State to the schedule this year to make up for a home meet the Huskers will play host to next year against the Nittany Lions.

Penn State and the Huskers appear to have many similar characteristics on paper, and the meet should be relatively even, Allen said.

"Penn State is in the same boat as we are," Allen said. "I think it's going to be a darn good meet."

The Nittany Lions should put some pressure on the Huskers that they have not felt this season. Allen said that this meet would be good for his young team.

"We need to be pushed because we haven't felt any pressure to this point,"

Allen said. "It should be a classic Penn State-Nebraska matchup."

"It comes down to how well we can perform. If we can perform well, we can win."

The Huskers then took the opportunity to schedule a meet at William & Mary for the same road trip. James Madison will also be competing in the triangular meet.

"It will be a chance for them at William & Mary to see something that they usually don't," Allen said.

The Huskers are hoping to take advantage of the road trip, Allen said.

good teams. I believe, though, that we're a better team now than we were before."

Iowa State, which will be playing its first game at home since Jan. 30, is led by senior guard Fred Hoiberg.

Hoiberg, an Ames native, was leading the Big Eight in scoring with a 24.6 average going into the week, but scored only 16 in a loss at Missouri Wednesday night.

Nee said the combination of Hoiberg and his hometown was something the Cornhuskers must overcome from the opening tip.

"Playing in Ames is hard, and I really just think Hoiberg is the key," he said. "He's a great, great player. (A good start) is really important. When you get a good start, it takes the crowd out of the game. It will be a game of spurts, and I just hope we can handle their pressure, execute and shoot like we've been shooting."

After Nebraska's 100-86 victory over Colorado Wednesday night, Nee said the Huskers had regained their shooting touch.
