familiar," she said. "She's an incredibly beautiful woman; guys would just drop at her feet. "It was hard to picture her being so sick."

As one of Lavedas' closer relations at KKNB, John has been keeping in close contact with her. She said that, as of Wednesday, Lavedas was in her 12th day of the bone marrow procedure in Omaha. She was scheduled to return to Lincoln Thursday.

"She's really anxious to see her child again," John said.

But expensive medical procedures haven't allowed Lavedas to completely remove herself from cancer's deadly path, John said. She said doctors have determined that, despite the bone marrow transplant, the cancer has a 50 percent chance of returning.

"We're all praying for her," John said.

Sunday's benefit concert will be held at 9 p.m., with the doors opening at 8 p.m. KKNB on-air personality "Junior" will be master of ceremonies for the event. Admission is $5.

Those who cannot attend the concert but wish to donate to Lavedas' medical fund may send checks to the Greek Orthodox Church Assistance Fund at the Greek Orthodox Church of the Annunciation, 950 N. 63rd St., with Lavedas' name written in the memo space.

Redneck humor to hit Lincoln

By Gerry Beltz
Senior Reporter

Is there a redneck in the house? Jeff Foxworthy, whose "You Might Be A Redneck If..." compact disc has sold more than 200,000 copies, will perform at Pershing Auditorium Saturday at 8 p.m.

Foxworthy has worked the comedy circuit for about 10 years and has opened for acts such as Garth Brooks, Wynton Marsalis and Jay Leno.

He has also authored six books including "Check Your Neck." His latest book, "Games Rednecks Play," blends Foxworthy's humor with the Olympic Games, which are set to take place in Atlanta, Ga., in 1996.

Although it makes up only a fraction of his two-hour show, Foxworthy's signature catch phrase is "You might be a redneck if..."

Lincoln, students have a variety of opinions about what qualities make someone a redneck.

"If he's driving a pickup that looks like mine, he might be a redneck," said Theresa Anderson, a freshman secondary education major.

Many students said rednecks could be spotted by their clothing.

"I think of a little tiny guy in big ol' boots with baggy Wrangler jeans," said Leslie Myers, a senior elementary education major, "and he's missing a tooth."

Kevin Cary, a junior management and marketing major, agreed about the Wrangler jeans.

"He's got the dip in his back pocket, wears cowboy boots and Wrangler jeans with a big belt buckle and a big straw cowboy hat," Cary said.

"I think rednecks are either people that work outside or because they always have hickies on their necks."

CARIN RAMSEL
UNL sophomore

Carin Ramsel, a sophomore mechanical engineering major, guessed where the term "redneck" originated.

"I think rednecks are either people that work outside," Ramsel said, "or because they always have hickies on their necks."
