New releases spring up over break

By Gerry Beltz

Spring is a time for fun, frolicking and films. This year is no exception, with a whole slew of flicks coming to Lincoln screens in the next two weeks.

This week, "Losing Isaiah" opens, starring Halle Berry and Jessica Lange. It is sure to be a tear-

A drug addict (Berry) abandons her newborn baby, who is adopted by a social worker (Lange). An adoption suit develops when the drug addict cleans up her act and wants her child back.

Horror sequels seem to be as infinite as the baseball talks. "Candyman II: Farewell to the Flesh" also opens this week. The hook-handed fiend is back, this time chasing after the descendant of a woman he loved centuries before.

Family-related comedy also is in the air with "Bye Bye Love" coming out. Paul Reiser, Matthew Modine and Randy Quaid all play single dads working on survival and dating.

The Oscar-shunned "Hoop Dreams" also comes to Lincoln this week, for anyone who missed it during its short run at the Mary Riepma Ross Film Theater a couple weeks ago.

The movies released over spring break are only tentatively scheduled, so it can change at a moment's notice.

Yet another Stephen King story is making its way to the big screen, this one entitled "Dolores Claiborne." It stars Kathy Bates and Jennifer Jason Leigh.

Dolores Claiborne (Bates) is accused of murder, largely because she was involved in a similar death years before. Leigh plays the daughter who hasn't seen her mother in 15 years.

There's not much information available on "Tall Tale: The Adventures of Pecos Bill," except that it has Patrick Swayze in the title role and involves a little kid who enlists the aid of three legendary characters, including Pecos Bill, Paul Bunyan and John Henry.

In "Major Payne," a tough-asnails Army man longs for combat and challenge and gets more than he bargained for when they assign him to a group of non-militaryminded youths.

Other movies include "Muriel's Wedding," which looks to be another romantic-comedy, and "Gordy," the story of a superpig with a cape that saves his entire

Check out Monsters to liven up break

From Staff Reports

Known for its incredible live performances, Big Head Todd and the Monsters is probably the best reason to stay in Nebraska for spring break.

The Monsters will play Tuesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Omaha Civic Auditorium Music Hall.

Tickets are still available at all Ticketmaster outlets for $19.75.

Correction

The Daily Nebraskan erroneously reported Wednesday that the Great Plains Art Collection would hold a reception this Sunday at 3:30 p.m. The reception actually was held last Sunday.
