Bands to play
for Amnesty International

Local bands Slowdown Virginia, Plastik Trumpet, Polecat and Commander Venus will perform Friday at the Culture Center, 333 N. 14th St.

The concert is a fund-raising event for Amnesty International. Amnesty International chapters at both the University of Nebraska-Lincoln and Lincoln High School helped organize and promote the concert.

Jamie Williams, co-president of the UNL Amnesty chapter, said the schools' cooperation was the result of both a move toward more cooperative projects and a lack of funds for Lincoln High's chapter.

"They (Lincoln High) were having problems getting enough money to run things," Williams said, "and we decided that we could help out."

Garth Johnson, vocalist for Plastik Trumpet and a member of UNL's Amnesty International chapter, said seeing a large number of people collaborate on promotion and organization had been a good experience.

"It's been a joint effort between both schools and the bands," Johnson said. "Everyone's out there putting up posters and getting the word out. We've been trying to build up to this for quite a while."

Contacting and encouraging bands to perform at the show were easy tasks, Williams said.

"We were basically friends with most of the bands, so it came together pretty easily," she said.

Although good music will be the main draw for most of the concert's audience members, Williams said, there will be an Amnesty International information booth and a series of brief lectures between bands for educational purposes.

"It's going to be a good opportunity to get information about Amnesty, and it's going to be a good show," she said.

Friday's show will begin at 7 p.m. Tickets are $3.
