

Three officers shot

HADDON HEIGHTS, N.J. (AP) — A gunman opened fire Thursday on two police officers and a prosecutor's investigator as they tried to force their way into his home to search for weapons. At least one officer was killed, authorities said.

Witnesses said as many as 100 shots were fired when the three men tried to force their way into the house. The suspect barricaded himself inside as dozens of officers surrounded the house.

Audubon police Cpl. Ralph Trovato said the officers and the investigator were shot to death. But assistant prosecutor Joseph Audino of Camden County said one officer was killed, the other officer hospitalized, and the investigator was still in the house, his condition unknown.

The accounts could not immediately be reconciled.

Authorities were talking by phone to the gunman, identified by police as Glenn Nelson, who lives in the house in this Philadelphia suburb. Nelson has undergone sex-change surgery and also goes by the name Leslie, Trovato said.

FBI spokeswoman Linda Vizi said that during the negotiations, Nelson placed two handguns outside on the porch, but that officials believed he had additional weapons.

Two officers had gone to the house earlier Thursday to investigate a report that a 3-year-old child who lived there had been sexually abused, Audino said.

While the officers spoke to the child's mother, they noticed at least one semi-automatic handgun and a shotgun in the house. Audino did not know the child's gender or relationship to Nelson.

The officers later determined that Nelson had a prior arrest record for illegal weapons possession, officials said.

Korea talks collapse, U.S. still unsatisfied

WASHINGTON (AP) — Talks between the United States and North Korea broke down Thursday.

No agreement was reached on a plan to keep the isolated communist nation from restarting a nuclear program suspected of producing fuel for nuclear weapons.

The State Department described the talks in Berlin as unsatisfactory. Officials said international inspectors at Yongbyon would keep an eye on a 5-megawatt experimental reactor that was shut down last year at U.S. behest.

"I have some concern about the situation," Secretary of State Warren Christopher said. "If they were to reload the reactor that would be a very adverse development."

American negotiator Gary Samore and his delegation will remain in Berlin until the weekend. North Korea has not informed them of any intention to resume.

"It's a vitally important issue for the North Koreans as it is for us, and so I'm not willing to say that we've suspended the talks," State Department spokesman Nicholas Burns said.

North Korea had said Friday was the deadline for implementing an agreement reached last October with the United States to arrange for new energy supplies.

The main hangup is a U.S. demand that North Korea accept two South Korean light-water reactors as replacements. North Korea refuses.

Kim Jong U, head of the North Korean delegation, said the talks remained deadlocked and would not be continued.

American negotiators were reported to have presented a compromise that would keep North Korea from carrying out its threat to restart its plutonium-producing nuclear reactor.
