Graduation spirit here again

By Matt Woody Senior Reporter

In her last week as an undergraduate, Pam Hansen is nervous and excited - and having trouble study-

Hansen, who will receive a bachelor's degree in criminal justice, said she would attend commencement ceremonies Saturday for more than one reason.

"Partly because my mom would kill me if I didn't, and partly because the ceremony will make it more real," she said.

This month's commencement ceremony will begin Saturday at 9:30 a.m. at the Bob Devaney Sports Cen-

James McShane, chairman of the Academic Senate's commencement committee, said he expected the crowd to fill the Devaney Center.

"There are more happy people in the Bob Devaney Sports Center at commencement than we have on campus at any time of year at any place," McShane said, "and it's a deeper type of satisfaction than going to any foot-

About 1,900 students will receive degrees, and many more parents and friends will attend, he said.

At least seven or eight at the Devaney Center Saturday will be rooting for Hansen. But Hansen isn't leaving the university for good. She will begin law school at the University of Nebraska in August.

But Hansen's focus Saturday will be on graduating with her first degree. The keynote speaker at the graduation exercises will be Steven Sample, president of the University of Southern California in Los Angeles. He was president of the State University of New York at Buffalo from 1982 to 1991, before assuming the top post at

Also at the ceremony, Val L. Fitch and Kermit Hansen will receive honorary degrees from the NU Board of Fitch, a Merriman, Neb., native, is the James S. McDonnell Distinguished University Professor of Physics at Princeton University. He shared the 1980 Nobel Prize for physics and worked on the Manhattan Project during World War II.

Kermit Hansen was a 20-year member of the Board of Regents and, during his tenure, often attended classes. He graduated from the University of Nebraska in 1939.

New at this year's ceremony is the option for students to purchase a videotape of the event. According to Karen Underwood, UNL special events coordinator, a video company will tape the ceremony's speaker, as well as each graduating student's walk across the stage.

'The commencement committee has discussed offering this service for some time now," Underwood said. "We want to meet all students' needs, especially those students whose parents can't come to com-

Billboard makes UNL professor 'cool'

By Angie Schendt

Those who know University of Nebraska-Lincoln Professor George Tuck may have thought they were hallucinating on the way to work or class last week.

Tuck, a news-editorial professor, and his wife, Mary Lynn, are featured on a billboard at the intersection of 48th and Vine streets.

'I have gotten a lot of razzing about it," Tuck said.

The billboard advertises Lincoln Electric Systems. The couple is pictured on the right of the billboard against a yellow background. To the left of the couple are the words, "We're cool with our heat pump." A strip identifying Tuck and his wife runs across the top of the sign.

Tuck said his wife had received calls from people who had seen it, and he had received calls from former and present students.

The comments have all been in good fun, he said.

"The rough stuff has been from my colleagues The billboard can be spotted at several locations, including the one on Vine Street and one by Lincoln High School. The billboards went on display last week and should be up for a few more weeks.

Tuck said the company approached him to do the advertisement.

"I have gotten a lot of razzing about it.'

"They asked at a meeting for someone who had a heat pump and was willing to talk about it," he said. The billboard might become one of a series featuring people who receive services from Lincoln Electric Systems, he said. Tuck said the experience had been fun, but would he do another billboard?

"I hope not," he said.
