Lincoln's Churches Welcome New and Returning Students

Students can taste some religion as local churches offer services

By John Fulwider
Staff Reporter

the executive director of the Lincoln Interfaith Council.

Lincoln is a city where it is safe for all persons to practice their faith, said

And not just those of the Christian faith. "The leadership of Lincoln has been willing to try to reach out and understand people of different religions," Norman Leach said.

In addition to 216 Christian churches, Lincoln has Asatru, Baha'i, Buddhist, Eckankar, Hindu/Sikh, Jewish, Messianic, Muslim, Unitarian, Unity, Wiccan and Zoroastrian congregations.

Lincoln has always had a strong religious tradition.

The land the city was built on was donated by a Methodist church, Leach said.

Recently, the diversity of religions in Lincoln has grown substantially.

The mid-1980's saw an increase in the number of non-Christian congregations, he said.

University of Nebraska-Lincoln students have five churches to choose from right on campus.

Cornerstone Church, at 640 N 16th St., includes four denominations: Presbyterian Church USA, United Methodist Church, Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) and the United Church of Christ.

Services are 10:30 a.m. Sundays starting August 20.

The Lutheran Student Center is at 535 N. 16th St., across the street from Cather-Pound-Neihardt Residence Complex.

Services are Sundays at 10:30 a.m. during the summer and at 9:30 and 11 a.m. during the semester.

St. Mark's on the Campus, an Episcopal congregation, is at 1309 R St., across the street from Love Library.

Services are Sundays at 8:30 and 10:30 a.m. during the summer and 8:30 and 10:30 a.m. and 5 p.m. during the semester.

University Lutheran Chapel is at 1510 Q St., near Blockbuster Video.

Services are Sundays at 10 a.m. during the summer and 9 and 11 a.m. during the semester.

St. Thomas Aquinas Church (also known as the Newman Center), a Catholic congregation, is at 320 N. 16th St., across the street from the University Lutheran Chapel.

Year-round services are at 6:55 a.m. Monday-Friday, at 10 p.m. Monday-Thursday, Fridays at 5 p.m., Saturdays at 8 a.m. and noon, and Sundays at 10 a.m. and 11 a.m. There is also a service Sundays during the semester at 5:30 p.m.
