Local bars hot spots to cool off

By Ann Stack
Staff Reporter

It's Wednesday night, you're done studying and it seems there's nothing to do in Lincoln. Believe it or not, there are some bars in town that minors can get into legally, which beats staring at the wall waiting for reruns of "Coach." Guitars & Cadillacs, (5400 O St.) This is a predominantly country-western bar, but it occasionally throws in some rock and dance music. It also has a low cover charge of $3. For the under-age crowd, Guitars offers an all-ages night on Sunday until 9 p.m. At 9 p.m., everyone under 19 is kicked out, and the 19-and-over crowd can dance until close to the best regional C&W acts around.

The Hurricane, (1118 O St.) Every night but Thursday offers a 19-and-over event with a minimal cover charge, usually about three bucks.

Tuesday is "Sound Check Live," a showcase for local talent, and Wednesday is "Planet Night," where 104.1 The Planet FM radio station broadcasts live from The Hurricane with the best in modern music.

A word of warning: hands are stamped with an ink that's really hard to get off. Minors, don't try to buy. You won't fool anyone.

The Pla-Mor Ballroom, (6600 West O St.) is another place for the 19-and-over crowd for country-western dancing. The cover charge is $5 and the doors open at 7 p.m. for free dance lessons and close at 12:30 a.m. Also, The Pla-Mor brings out a favorite regional act, The Rumbles, once a month for an all-ages show. The charge for that is $5.

P.O. Pears (322 S. 9th) allows minors in during certain hours (daytime and early evening), but the exact cut-off time varies from day to day. Call for best results. It has a sand volleyball court, cool decorations, and the burgers at this place are well worth the trip.

The Royal Grove, (340 W. Cornhusker Hwy) offers a lot of variety for the rock 'n roll and alternative crowds. The Grove, in cooperation with radio stations 106.3 The Blaze and 104.1 The Planet, stages lots of low-dough shows throughout the year. The charge is usually fairly low; around $3 for local and regional acts and $10 for some of the more widely-known bands.

For those over 21, there are several bars in the downtown area alone, with some of the more popular ones within a two-block radius of one another, including The Watering Hole (1321 O St.), Duffy's (1412 O St.), and the Brass Rail (1436 O St.). Many of these establishments offer lunch and dinner specials, trademark drinks and a lively social atmosphere.
