St. in Lincoln's Historic Haymarket District, visitors can view finished work and watch residence artists create in their studios.

The gallery is open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. It has three levels with new shows monthly.

The gallery features a collection of 26 art and design studios with loft apartments and three levels of exhibits, connected by a sun-filled atrium.

Anne Burkholder, gallery owner, has created a place where artists have superb work spaces and the support of other creative people.

September will feature painters Elma Dreesen and Bobby Sward and photographer John Nollendorfs.

October will feature watercolor and oil landscapes in the main gallery. Bill Ganzel and Alan Smith will display landscape photos.

Observe the freshest contemporary exhibits from regional artists at Gallery 9. Each month, a solo artist displays new work in half the gallery.

Gallery 9, 124 S. Ninth St., is open Wednesday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. and Sunday from noon to 5 p.m.

Gallery 9 features distinctive, contemporary fine arts and crafts and the work of more than 20 local and regional artists.

Located in the newly renovated Mission Arts Building, the gallery is an authentic artists' cooperative. The artists share work space, display space and gallery responsibilities. The gallery's layout is unique: long and rectangular.

Art on display is diverse, ranging from small sculptures to large pastels. Exhibits change every month, with a different artist featured in half the gallery. This month's featured artist is Neil Munson, a retired University of Nebraska-Lincoln industrial arts professor.

Each four-week featured show usually opens with a reception on the first Friday evening of the month.

The Haydon Gallery promotes the Midwest's finest regional and local talent as well as UNL faculty. Group and solo exhibitions change monthly.

Haydon, 335 N. Eighth St., is open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The gallery is a project of the Nebraska Arts Association and represents more than 100 of the Midwest's finest regional and local artists.

Their work represents many diverse contemporary styles and mediums, including landscapes, still lifes, abstracts, oil and watercolor paintings, hand-blown vases and three-dimensional table-top sculptures. Profits earned from sales support the artists, the Sheldon Memorial Art Gallery and educational opportunities.

Haydon supports many artists who are University of Nebraska-Lincoln faculty.

The annual Summer Group Show, featuring 50 of the Midwest's most prominent artists, runs through the end of this month.

The Lincoln Artists Guild is the home of emerging talent. Guild volunteers rotate the exhibits every three months, and the back gallery features a new show every month.

The Guild, 719 P St., is open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

The guild, a non-profit organization, is dedicated to helping new artists develop and emerge, said Julee Lowe, a guild artist. It houses a wide range of efforts from both professional and beginning artists and is staffed by volunteers.

Most work on display comes from local and regional artists. Lowe said the organization accepted artists' work on the basis of quality and tastefulness.

"The Lincoln Artist Guild encourages beginning artists," Lowe said. "It helps them get a start."

Volunteers rotate the art about every three months, she said. The guild also leases three art studios to beginning artists.

"It's a way for a beginning student to get a cheap studio space," Lowe said.

Noyes Art Gallery features regional as well as out-of-state and international artists. The gallery offers free receptions and artistic demonstrations.

Noyes, 119 S. Ninth St., is open Monday through Saturday from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Twenty regional artists working in all media are featured in Noyes, along with the out-of-state and foreign artists. Exhibits change monthly and all artwork is original.

The Noyes' range includes jewelry, bronze, ceramics, sculpture, pottery, furniture and painting.

The gallery hosts a reception on the first Friday of every month where the newest art exhibits are displayed. Artistic demonstrations usually are held at every reception.

Noyes also provides food and music—sometimes live—at the receptions.

There are eight working studios
