Magical show opens tonight at Wesleyan

By Gerry Beltz
 Senior Reporter

Nebraska Wesleyan University opens its fall theater season with Henrik Ibsen's play "The Lady From The Sea," directed by Jay Scott Chipman.

Theater

Chipman said he has had previous contact with this play and thought it would be a good piece of work to do at Wesleyan. "This was a play that I had studied when I was in school and I found it very attractive.

I thought it offered very-challenging roles for actors, and perhaps the best reason is that it has a lot of appeal to the audience on a lot of different levels."

Chipman said "The Lady From The Sea" had a little of everything—suspense, drama, romance, humor and some serious dramatic moments.

In "The Lady From The Sea," the stable life of wife and mother Ellida Wangel is rocked by some troubling memories, a yearning for the sea and the return of her one true love.

One challenge that Chipman and his crew met with during the production was the fact that the play originally called for four different settings, but Chipman said they tried something different by going with one symbolic set.

"We light it differently to suggest different places," he said. "We had a lot of fun with that."

"Another fun thing about the set is there is not one level point on the whole thing. It's all at different levels, and everybody is walking on angles the whole time in period costumes."

Chipman credits a great deal of the quality of this production to the cast and crew of Wesleyan students.

"They are very hard workers and very dedicated," he said.

Another challenge they have faced, Chipman said, is the language of the play, which is set in 1888.

"It is more formal and a little more poetic than our contemporary language.

"They have worked very hard and have been finding ways to make that language work for them."

Chipman said he was hoping to work a little bit of magic with "The Lady From The Sea."

"We're hoping that we can draw the audience into the spell of the sea," he said.

"The Lady From The Sea" runs tonight through Sunday at MacDonald Theatre at 51st and Huntington streets. The show is at 8 p.m. tonight through Saturday and at 2 p.m. on Sunday. Tickets are $5 each.

Student fair to emphasize responsibility

From Staff Reports

"Party smart, think it through!" is the motto of the Smart Party Idea Fair, to be held today in the Centennial Room. Afterwards, swing over to the Crib to watch "Friends," "The Single Guy," and "Seinfeld," then stick around for Cribstock, a talent show of 11 acts.

"The Smart Party Idea Fair allows students to view different ideas of partying that take responsibility into consideration," said Rick DeBellis, a graduate student assistant to Student Affairs.

The fair will be from 4 p.m. to 7 p.m., and door prizes will be given away. The Social Responsibility Committee is sponsoring the event.

"We're not saying don't drink, but party responsibly," DeBellis said.

After the three TV shows, there will be a half-hour break to set up for Cribstock.

Cribstock, a UNL talent show, will feature musicians, magicians, comedians and more. The first-place winner will receive $100, second $75 and third $50.
