

Centrexes recyclable office paper

By Tasha E. Kelter
Staff Reporter

Now that the 1995-96 Centrex is being distributed, some may be wondering what to do with their 1994-95 Centrexes.

"It's a recyclable telephone book," said Dale Ekart, coordinator of the UNL Recycling Department. "The paper is usable office paper."

Ekart said old Centrexes could be recycled by cutting the plastic spiral binding with scissors, unwinding the plastic from the back of the book and depositing the rest of the book in any paper recycling bin.

"The shiny covers are not a problem," Ekart said. "The color of the paper makes no difference."

Every UNL office should be receiving a new Centrex within the next two weeks, he said.
