

Wrestlers battle back to tie OSU

The third-ranked Nebraska wrestling team won five of its last six matches to come back from an 18-7 deficit and force an 18-18 tie with sixth-ranked Oklahoma State at the Reno Tournament of Champions in Reno, Nev., on Saturday night.

Nebraska (6-0-1) was awarded the tournament title based on having more near fall points and takedowns during the course of the dual.

Capturing individual victories for the Cornhuskers were Jason Kraft at 150 pounds, top-ranked Temoer Terry at 158 pounds, Erik Josephson at 177 pounds, Ryan Tobin at 190 pounds and top-ranked Tolly Thompson at heavyweight.

Husker wrestler Tony DeAnda suffered a broken nose early in his final match.

Swimmers split at MU

The 20th-ranked Nebraska men's swimming and diving team lost to Missouri Sunday in Columbia, Mo., by the score of 123-120. The Tigers won seven of 13 events. Nebraska fell to 2-8 overall and 0-2 in the Big Eight. The Cornhuskers lost to Kansas and Missouri in Lawrence, Kan., on Saturday.

The No. 9 Nebraska's women's squad (4-2) rebounded from a loss Friday at Kansas to defeat Missouri 134-109 on Sunday. Freshman diver T.D. Rowe earned her sixth victory of the year with a score of 299.32 on the 3-meter board.

The Husker women will play host to Minnesota Friday night at the Bob Devaney Sports Center, and the men will face Iowa State on Saturday at 1 p.m. at the Devaney Center.

Gymnasts win opener

The Nebraska women's gymnastics team won its season-opener Sunday night over Iowa State in Ames, Iowa, by the score of 189.775-189.60.

The Cornhuskers were led by junior Shelley Bartlett, who won the all-around with a score of 38.325. Bartlett also won balance beam (9.75). Senior Joy Taylor placed third in the all-around (37.525) and junior Kim DeHaan finished fourth with a score of 37.425. Freshman Amie Dillman won the vault with a 9.675 in her first college event.

We can go out and measure it."

Said Boone, who scored 18 points: "I didn't see it go over the backboard. It's pretty hard, me being left-handed on the right side for it to go over the backboard without me being completely out-of-bounds." Head official Denny Freund called the shot good before Range overturned it.

"He (Range) wanted to know if he had the right call," Freund said. "I said, 'If you really feel strongly (that) the ball came from behind the backboard, go with it.' He obviously was quite sure about it or he wouldn't have made the call."

Cornhusker senior Erick Strickland wasn't so sure.

"He's (Range) standing underneath. I don't see how he can see it. It's like he's trying to take over the game," Strickland said.

"Why wouldn't I think it was good?" Nee said. "I didn't think it was even close."

Nebraska took a 10-2 lead as junior forward Tina McClain scored six points and senior center Pyra Aarden hit a field goal and two free throws.

Nebraska looked for the blowout when Galligan hit a 3-pointer to give the Huskers an 11-point lead just seven minutes into the game, but the Huskers had to settle for a 29-22 halftime lead.

"They kept hanging in there, and it was kind of frustrating," Galligan said. "We just couldn't quite put them away."

Nebraska looked to take control of the second half by scoring eight of the first 10 points while building a 13-point lead, but the Wildcats cut Nebraska's lead to four points with 10 minutes remaining in the game.

But Nebraska sophomore guard Jami Kubik hit a 3-pointer and two free throws, and Kansas State was never able to get closer.

"I thought her 3 was a major key for us," Nebraska coach Angela Beck said. "I think I might have been a little tight right there, but that 3 really opened it up for us. I felt like we were in pretty good control of this game."

third overtime and the Huskers trailing 105-98.

"When I missed those free throws," Hamilton said, "I was thinking about Las Vegas."

A year ago, Saturday's game wouldn't have gone into overtime. Nebraska would have lost in regulation. A big reason why the Huskers are more competitive this season is Lue, Hamilton and Bernard Garner, who was Nebraska's go-to guy in overtime before he fouled out Saturday.

Together, the trio won 96 games a year ago and lost eight.

"We are going to have a lot of confidence now. Oklahoma is one of the hardest places to play in, and we know we can play here. They are going to say it was the officials," said Hamilton, pointing to Nebraska's seniors, who were surrounded in the locker room by reporters.

"It wasn't the officials. We just didn't play until the second half."

Hamilton said he expected Nebraska to beat the Sooners by 10 to 20 points. Maybe he was just an innocent freshman who didn't know what to expect from the Big Eight. Maybe he was a new player, a confident player with the attitude Nebraska needs.

Frazier passes test in Shrine Bowl win

By Trevor Parks
Senior Reporter

Tommie Frazier had something to prove during the East-West Shrine Game on Saturday afternoon.

As an option quarterback at Nebraska, Frazier never had a chance to show off his passing ability to NFL scouts. Playing in a pro-style offensive set in the all-star game for college seniors, Frazier finally got his chance.

The former Cornhusker, who led Nebraska to two national titles, propelled the West squad to a 34-18 victory over the East, completing 11-of-20 passes for 162 yards and one touchdown in Palo Alto, Calif. He also added 33 yards rushing and one score on six carries. He was named the offensive player of the game.

Frazier, the offensive most valuable player of the Jan. 2 Fiesta Bowl, said Saturday that the Shrine Bowl gave him the opportunity to show off his passing skills.

"I'm not the type of player to brag about myself, but I had a pretty good day," Frazier said. "I just did what the coaches asked me to do. We didn't do anything fancy; we just kept it simple."

Former UCLA coach and West coach Terry Donahue said Frazier had an outstanding performance. "When I first saw Tommie Frazier, the first day we had him in practice on Monday, I was impressed with his arm strength and arm speed," Donahue said. "Somebody's going to invest in this guy."

"He's magical. He's smart. He knows what to do with the ball. This guy is dangerous."

In the fourth quarter, Frazier showed how dangerous he could be.

After struggling through three quarters, Frazier turned the game around with his team trailing 18-13.

A 5-yard touchdown run by Frazier, the Huskers' career leader in touchdowns, made the score 21-18 with 10:07 remaining. On that drive, he connected with Fresno State's Charlie Jones on a 37-yard completion and threw a bullet into the back of the end zone for a two-point conversion.

With the West leading 28-18, Frazier connected on a 52-yard pass to former UCLA wide receiver Kevin Jordan for the final touchdown with 5:56 left.

"In the first half, we had a tempo," Frazier said. "We had no rhythm in the third quarter. When we got the rhythm back, we just got fired up."
