Swimmers begin final Big 8 meet

By Vince D'Adamo
Staff Reporter

The Big Eight Conference farewell tour moves to the swimming pool today in Oklahoma City, Okla.

The Nebraska swimming and diving teams take on their Big Eight foes today through Saturday in the Big Eight Championships. Cornhusker coach Cal Bentz said the carnival atmosphere at Big Eights made it special for the athletes.

"Of course, it's extra special this year because it's the last Big Eight meet," Bentz said.

The Nebraska women, who return four conference champions, are well-balanced. Penny Heyns, Melanie Dodd, Julia Russell, Mikaela Lauren and Heather Park are nationally ranked. Nebraska is seeking its third straight Big Eight title and seventh in the past 10 years.

On the men's side, the Huskers are void of returning conference champions. Nebraska, however, has been stellar in most events. All-Americans Francois Boshoff, Juan Benavides and Alex Schleifman lead the way. They will receive plenty of help from Olympic Festival hero Mark Bennett and freshman sensation Josh Mathias. The Huskers had won 14 conference titles until last season, when they finished behind Iowa State and Kansas.
