Appeal helps restore funding

Funding for the Office of Campus Recreation's wellness program was restored after an appeal to the Committee for Fees Allocation on Thursday.

CFA

Funding had been cut by CFA on Tuesday for a proposed fitness program incorporating all aspects of fitness, such as a health risk appraisal, personal weight training and aerobic programs and nutritional counseling.

The appeal began with an interactive demonstration of some services the center's fitness program would offer and a presentation of why the services were necessary.

A budget was proposed that would have reinstated $12,960 of the original CFA cut of $19,500. The cut reduced the proposed staff person for the program to a 10-month position rather than a full-time one.

The first vote on the proposal failed by a vote of 5-5.

An amendment to add $2,500 to Wellness Services was then proposed and passed by a vote of 5-4, after one committee member left. The amount had been cut Tuesday from the overall Campus Recreation budget because CFA believed the revenue could be generated from the income of the proposed program.

CFA voted again on an amendment that would return $10,459 to the budget for the fitness program, and this time it passed by a vote of 6-3.

The amount reinstated was $1 less than the amount originally proposed because CFA rules do not allow the committee to vote on the same amendment more than once.

Stan Campbell, director of Campus Recreation, said he was pleased and excited that the committee accepted the modified proposal.

"We think it's a great benefit to the students of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln, and we're looking forward to implementing it in the fall," he said.

Today, an alarming 28% of our small town kids are into big town drugs. If your kids are getting high on something other than winning, it's time you talked to them.
