seat through driver's education," she said. "It's time to tell them what to do in the back seat."

Abstinence, however, remains the safest way to prevent diseases and unwanted pregnancies, Elders said. Therefore, masturbation must be included in the health care curriculum.

"We should teach young people about all phases of sex," she said. "That they'll get hair on their hands, go blind, go crazy—all those things are lies. Seventy percent of women and 90 percent of men masturbate—and the others lie."

Another problem of the current care system, Elders said, is that many patients in rural areas don't have access to doctors.

States such as Nebraska and Arkansas have too many doctors in the cities, while most residents live in rural areas, she said.

The health care system, however, should encourage young doctors to become generalists and work in small communities, Elders said.

To achieve that, every U.S. citizen must have health insurance, she said.

Employers must be required, she said, to pay insurance for all their workers.

Returning hall residents could earn scholarship

Plans are in the works for a scholarship for returning residence hall students, Vander Woude said.

According to the rules in the residence hall applications, applicants sponsored by the University of Nebraska-Lincoln Residence Hall Association, is still pending approval by Housing.

It would be directly applied to the recipient's room and board fees. Student assistants would not be eligible.

The RHA executive committee came up with the idea and received suggestions about it from members of the senate at Sunday night's meeting. Students maintaining a 2.5 grade point average and returning to the

Baylor students to tour UNL

A group of Baylor University students are giving up their spring breaks to tour UNL and three other Big Eight schools.

Representatives of the Baylor University student government will begin their tour of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln today.

"They're visiting our campus to gain insight to the way our student government and university in general works," said Jeff Van Pelt, assistant director of admissions.

Pelt is also co-adviser of the University Ambassadors, which is sponsoring Baylor's visit, along with the Association of Students of the University of Nebraska.

Monday's visit will include a tour of the Athletic Department, a meeting with the Interfraternity Council and Panhellenic Association and lunch with James Griesen, vice chancellor for student affairs, ASUN president Shawntell Hurtgen and members of the University Ambassadors.

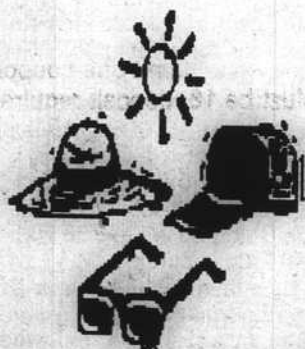

After lunch, the Baylor students will meet with Eric Vander Woude, president of the Residence Hall Association, and then with representatives of ASUN.
