

Tidball

Continued from Page 1

said. Through ETS, Mendoza-Gorham works with sixth-grade students and adult students who are or will be the first generation in their families to attend a university or college, she said.

Participants also must meet certain income guidelines. But contrary to what many people believe, she said, the program is not minority-based.

Mendoza-Gorham works one-on-one with students and coordinates programs that are educational and cultural, she said.

Students learn which preparatory tests to take and how to fill out college applications and financial aid forms, she said.

The program also involves a summer on-campus mentor program in which students can explore career ideas and options, she said.

"The students can really get a feel for the field they're interested in," she said.

Both Upward Bound and ETS are known for being extremely successful, she said, and she stays in contact with the students she works with after they exit the programs.

"I see them on campus," she said, "and some of them work for me now."

Students in mock city tackle real-life issues

By Tonya Cross
Staff Reporter

There's a place two UNL professors send their students every semester to help them apply what they learn in the classroom to real-life situations.

That place is a town called Libertyville.

It appears in the Nebraska East Union one day each semester, when UNL professors Leverne Barrett and Bill Watson bring together their AgLec 202 classes for an impact exercise.

In Libertyville, each student is assigned a role and a specific area of interest, such as the City Council or the PTA. Students must play the part they are assigned, and some of them even come in costume.

"Not all the students know each other," Barrett said, "It makes it interesting for everyone."

He said students must try to gain support for their issues and also learn how to manage the available time.

A town reporter adds intrigue by snooping around for any kind of dirt, he said.

Some students face difficulty in trying to rally support for their cause from people who have heard bad things about them.

"Gossip goes rampant," Barrett said, "What do you do when you're gossiped about? Do you lose your influence?"

Christy Davis, a sophomore agricultural education major, said the activity emphasized getting along with people and their personality styles.

"You can sit in a classroom and inhale all this information, but you need to experience it, too," she said.

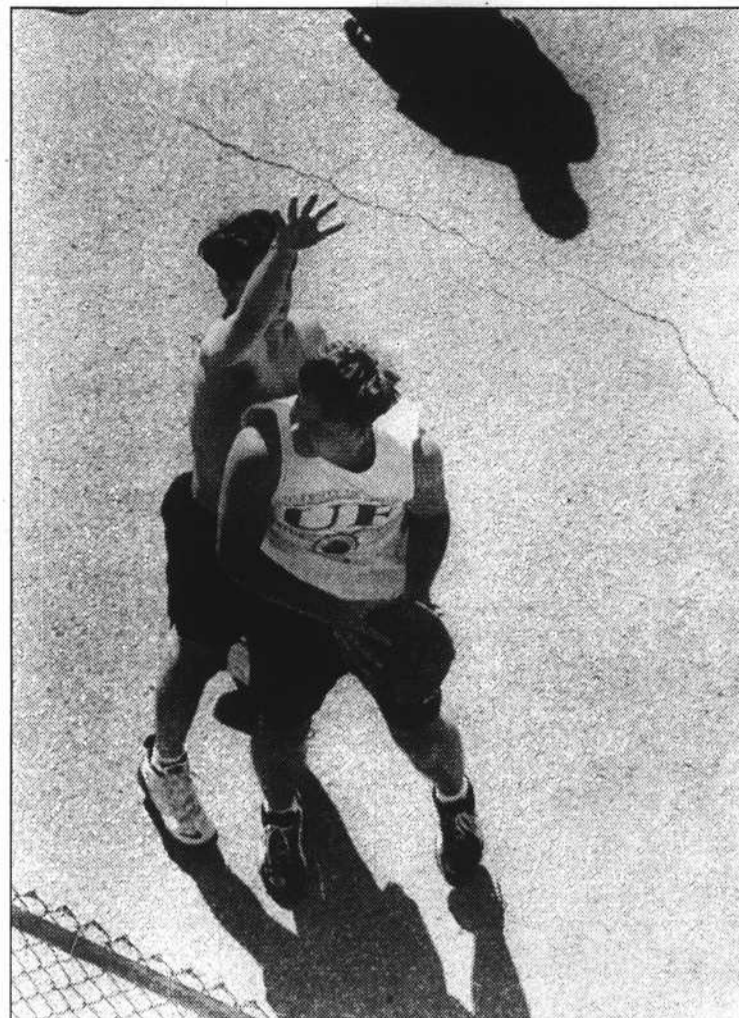

Nick Toberer, a junior agricultural science major, said the class taught students about organization.

"The activity made those people stand out who would be leaders and who wouldn't," he said.

After the mock city, students rate who was the most influential and what issues were most important. The teachers then evaluate what the students have done.

"It's a lot of fun, exciting, tiring and stressful," Barrett said.

SUN BLOCK

Tanna Kinnaman/DN

Fiji fraternity members play a game of basketball outside their house Tuesday. From right are Matt Dill, freshman architecture major, and Scott Hazuka, freshman business and advertising major.

<http://www.unl.edu/DailyNeb/>

the Daily Nebraskan

Guide to

Holy Week & Easter

Church Services

St. Mark's on the Campus

(Episcopal/Anglican)

13th & R

Maundy Thursday: 7 p.m. Eucharist

Good Friday: Liturgies 8 a.m., Noon, 7 p.m.

Easter Eve: 11 p.m. Vigil & Eucharist

Easter Day: 10:30 a.m. Choral Eucharist

THE EPISCOPAL CHURCH
WELCOMES YOU!

New senate will learn at ASUN meeting

Tonight's ASUN meeting will focus on the future, as a new senate learns the rules and procedures of the Association of Students of the University of Nebraska.

Eric Marintzer, new ASUN president, said previous ASUN members, including senators and first vice president Steve Korell, would go over procedures for meetings and passing legislation.

"This will be a kind of orientation meeting for members — one where senators will be given a chance to learn," he said.

Marintzer said that, as in most years, the senate had few returning members. He estimated that 28 to 29 new ASUN members were elected, with only four or five returning.

"The impression I'm getting of the new members is that they're excited," he said. "It's good to see that they're so anxious."

—Kasey Kerber

Career handbook to be in the hands of creative students

By Joshua Gillin
Staff Reporter

Students who need some extra cash for the summer and want to exercise their creative muscles should get out some paper and a pen.

Geri Cotter, acting director of the University of Nebraska-Lincoln's Career Services Center, said NU had been approached by Academic Publishing Services Inc. — an Atlanta-based publishing firm — to design and distribute a handbook to help college students find jobs after graduation.

The two categories open to student contributions are designing the publication's cover and writing an essay addressing the question "Why should corporate America recruit University of Nebraska graduates?"

Both categories are open to UNL, University of Nebraska-Kearney and University of Nebraska-Omaha students registered for at least six hours.

Both essays and cover designs must be submitted to the Career Services Center, 230 Nebraska Union, by 5 p.m. on April 15.

BELIEVERS FELLOWSHIP

Easter Celebration
with drama & music
10:00 a.m.

Be our guest for breakfast
8:30 a.m.

Youth Complex Bldg.
on State Fair Park Road
(east of Devaney Sports Center)
464-2162

HOLY WEEK SERVICES

CORNERSTONE-UMHE
640 NORTH 16TH ST.

Maundy Thursday
April 4
10:00 PM

THE LORD'S SUPPER

Saturday-Sunday
April 6 - 7

Easter Vigil
11:00 PM

"Faces at the Cross"

Service of Tenebrae

12 Midnight
First Easter Celebration

12:30 AM
Breakfast - $2

EASTER SUNDAY
April 7 • 10:30 AM

Morning Worship
Holy Communion

WHERE'S GOD?

HARVEST COMMUNITY CHURCH

Sunday Worship at 10:30 a.m.

Meeting at Everett School at 11th & "B" St.

up-to-date music ♦ friendly people ♦ relevant messages

Join Us for Easter Week at University Lutheran Chapel

"Pressing Toward The Goal" (Phil. 3:14)

"THE LAST SUPPER" Dramatic Presentation
Thursday, April 4th, 9:00PM

"FEEL THE NAILS" Good Friday Service
Friday, April 5th, 9:00PM

Easter Festival Celebration
Sunday, April 7th, 7:00AM & 11:00AM
(Easter Breakfast at 8:30AM)

University Lutheran Chapel

1510 Q Street (N.W. corner of 16th & "Q"), 477-3997

The campus and young adult ministry where Christ is worshipped and proclaimed in an atmosphere of celebration and praise!

A ministry of the Lutheran Church Missouri Synod

