Continued from Page 2

"We couldn't match up with Nebraska. They're too good for us."
— Florida coach Steve Spurrier, after the Gators' 62-24 Fiesta Bowl loss, week of January 8, 1996.

"Pictures of Winston Churchill jetskiing in the nude are not uncommon and can be slightly arousing when held at the proper angle."
— Columnist Steve Willey, on his Internet exploits, week of January 15, 1996.

"The real poll is on the interstate, and it's applied with the foots they put on the pedal."
— Sen. Ernie Chambers of Omaha, on Nebraska motorists' opinions of increased speed limits, week of January 22, 1996.

"There is no killer on death row for whom the death penalty is more appropriate."
— Attorney General Don Stenberg, on a U.S. Circuit Court ruling reinstating convicted murderer John Joubert's death penalty, week of January 29, 1996.

"If we're going to cover up their rears, let's cover up the rest of them ... It should be unlawful to slut yourself around like that."
— Lincoln resident Lisa Bulin, speaking to the City Council about full-nudity strip clubs, week of February 5, 1996.

"If our kids thought they would try to have a little fun and not show up for practice, I tell you, there'd be five cheerleaders going to war the next game."
— Kansas men's basketball coach Roy Williams, on what would happen if his players boycotted practice, as the Nebraska basketball team did, week of February 19, 1996.

"I got a bloody nose within five minutes in the mosh pit. This is the toughest show I've ever been to, and I've been to Metallica, Pantera. These guys rule."
— UNO student Greg Seher, on a White Zombie concert in Lincoln, week of February 26, 1996.

"Allowance of overnight visitation and premarital sexual relations in dorms is also activity that offends my convictions."
— University of Nebraska at Kearney freshman Douglas Rader, in a civil suit filed against the NU board of Regents claiming that forcing him to live in a residence hall violates his right to freely exercise his religion, week of March 4, 1996.

"We have some writings that match up, but we don't have his tools yet. We want the irrefutable motherlode of evidence."
— An unnamed federal law-enforcement official, on the Unabomber case, week of April 1, 1996.

"He could come from Mars, and if he's got talent, I don't really care about where he's from or his past problems."
— John Becker, St. Louis Rams college scouting coordinator, on Lawrence Phillips, shortly before the Rams selected Phillips as the sixth pick in the NFL draft, week of April 8, 1996.

"God, to me, isn't the answer. God is the question. I still don't understand. At the same time, what can I do? Divorce God?"
— Nobel laureate Elie Wiesel, in a press conference the day after his speech at UNL, week of April 15, 1996.

"He loved life. He did what he wanted to do. He had a lot of enthusiasm and he enjoyed every day. I'm sure he had no regrets."
— Tom Osborne, on former Husker quarterback Brook Berringer, who died in a plane crash, week of April 22, 1996.
