Solich seeks time for NU backs

Sims, who rushed for 270 yards on 30 attempts last year despite being No. 4 on the depth chart, said the Huskers' variety and depth in the backfield will cause problems for opponents.

"We all have different styles," Sims said. "We all have experience."

The different running styles of the Nebraska I-back's cause problems for opposing teams, but not for Solich.

"It doesn't make it tougher to coach them," he said. "There are certain things we'll expect from each I-back. We try to fit the back into our system, not mold our system around the back."

The spot left open at fullback by Jeff Makovicka will be filled by senior Brian Schuster and sophomore Joel Makovicka.

"Brian Schuster played really well last year," Solich said, "so I expect we'll have a good year out of him. But Joel Makovicka did also. I think those two will both have a big impact for us this year."

Solich said Dan Alexander, a 6-1, 230-pound true freshman from Wentzville, Mo., had a chance to see playing time at fullback.

True freshman DeAngelo Evans, a standout at Collegiate High School in Wichita, Kan., could also have an immediate impact, Solich said.

"I've been impressed," Solich said. "DeAngelo has done extremely well at the I-back spot. We'd like to give him a chance and see what he can do this season."

NU's Tomich rewarded for years of work

In December, he will be the first member of his family to graduate from college.

He is now a 6-2, 260-pound preseason All-American, an Outland and Lombardi Award candidate, a returning first-team All-American and a potential first-round pick in April's NFL draft.

"Graduation," Tomich said, "that's my biggest accomplishment. It's right up there with winning the national title. That's better than all those All-American and those preseason things. It's better than all that stuff."

But now Tomich wants to do more. Last season, he made a surprise visit to the Lincoln Children's Museum, and he volunteers with the Ventures in Partnership Program and as a Shadowing Program mentor.

"It's great when I get letters from home," Tomich said "Kids and parents are thanking me for encouraging them, showing them there's a light at the end of the tunnel."

"I show them it's hard work, though, and they'll all get through it. It's not all for nothing."
