Action-packed movies hit Lincoln big screens

By GERRY BELTZ

Lots of action, drama and sequels will hit the local movie screens in the next few months, but nothing spectacular awaits on the horizon.

The movies coming out are not limited to this list, nor are the release dates set in stone. Heck, some of these flicks may not even make it to Lincoln (watch the Omaha screens, though).

Today sees the opening of "A Very Brady Sequel," capitalizing on the success of its predecessor. This time around, the gang goes to Hawaii, and Carol's ex-boyfriend (Tim Matheson) is making a play to get her back.

Also opening this week, a remake of the H.G. Wells classic "The Island of Dr. Moreau," starring Marlon Brando, Val Kilmer and David Thewlis. A scientist (Brando) has been experimenting with gene splicing humans and animals, and a marooned castaway (Thewlis) stumbles into this world gone mad.

Rumor has it that, during filming, Brando walked up to Kilmer and said

"Don't confuse the size of your paycheck with talent." Ouch!

Next week, the critically-acclaimed "Trainspotting" finally pulls into Lincoln. "Trainspotting" follows a group of youths as they make decisions about their lives.

Also opening next week, "The Crow: City of Angels." Vincent Perez takes over the title role, formerly played by the late Brandon Lee. The movie takes place in a dark, futuristic society (ala "Blade Runner").

Moving into September, we have the action-comedy "Bulletproof," teaming up tough-cop Keats (Damon Wayans) having to protect sniveling crook-turned-witness Archie (Adam Sandler) from gangsters, the FBI and local police.

On the 20th, Bette Midler, Diane Keaton and Goldie Hawn team up as the "First Wives Club." The three are determined to bring down their husbands, who have left them for younger women. That same day, Bruce Willis stars in "Last Man Standing," following a man playing both sides of a gangster war.
