

ASUN hears instrumental alma mater

Chancellor James Moeser gave senators a "wordless" preview of UNL's alma mater at Wednesday's ASUN meeting.

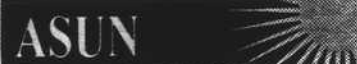

Moeser played a tape of the instrumental version of the alma mater. The lyrics, he said, will be revealed on HuskerVision at the homecoming game

Oct. 12.

Moeser was concerned that the song's lyrics might be printed by the press before the homecoming game. He revealed that the first two words of the alma mater were "Nebraska, Nebraska."

Moeser also said the song's lyrics dealt with "pride and loyalty to the university."

Introducing the alma mater at the homecoming game would "get (the song) internalized as part of the culture of this campus," Moeser said.

In other action, Bronson Riley, academic committee chair, said his committee was still revising the Outstanding Educator Award. Riley announced at the last ASUN meeting that legislation on the award would be presented at Wednesday's meeting.

Riley said he hoped to get the revision into legislation for the Oct. 2 Association of the Students of the University of Nebraska meeting.

First Vice President Jason Bynum addressed the increased number of absences among ASUN senators to recent meetings.

"We've averaged six or more absences a meeting for the last two meetings," Bynum said. "This is getting out of hand."

New legislation included three new appointments to ASUN, the approval of the Committee for Fees Allocation revised bylaws and the student organization recognition of the Campus Recreation Advisory Council.

Ron Lahners, the newly-appointed special prosecutor in the case, argued that the defense actually was trying to challenge Cole's credibility as a witness — a matter that Lahners said should be proved during the trial, not before it.

Maya Chilese, a close friend of Cole, testified that she let Cole live with her for a week after the shooting while he recovered.

During his stay, Cole told her he didn't see who shot him, but assumed Washington was the gunman because he was the only person with a motive, Chilese said.

Rick Wallace, president of the Lincoln National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, testified Cole called him in September 1995, and discussed the Washington case.

Wallace said Cole told him the same thing. He said Cole wasn't sure who shot him, but thought Washington was probably the only person who had the opportunity.

AUTO THEFT

A Lincoln man left a lot of valuable equipment in his car Monday night, but perhaps nothing more valuable than his car keys.

Kyle Lackman, 28, an employee of EnviroTech, left the car parked in front of his house on the 3100 block of Orchard Street with $5,550 worth of science equipment inside, Lincoln police Sgt. Terry Sherrill said.

The loss included a $4,000 microscope, two cameras and several lenses valued at $600, a $750 air pump and a tool box with $200 of laboratory equipment and chemicals, Sherrill said.

The thief who stole Lackman's 1992 Ford Tempo found the keys in the camera bag, Sherrill said. The car was taken between 8 p.m. Monday and 11:15 a.m. Tuesday.

BURGLARY

Police investigating a burglary in progress at Globe Quality Cleaners Tuesday night found the 17-year-old perpetrator hiding inside.

Officers responded to an alarm at the cleaners, 2101 G St., and found a rear window partially open, Sherrill said.

Police knew the burglar was still in the building because he left a baseball cap and a compact disc player below the window, Sherrill said.

An officer with a police dog searched the building and found the burglar hiding behind pipes on the ground level, Sherrill said.

The youth was arrested for burglary and taken to the Lincoln Attention Center.
