Get Involved with Emerging Leaders!
 The 1996-97 Emerging Leader Class recruitment and publicity campaign is under way!

The Emerging Leader Class is sponsored by UNL's Student Involvement and provides, among other advantages, essential personal and professional leadership skills to ambitious students. The Emerging Leader Class, offered for two credit hours in three sections during the Spring semester, is an interactive endeavor. Instructors, teaching assistants, and student leaders join together to enhance new students' leadership qualities, and encourage a positive and successful university experience. Moreover, the ELC provides an energetic atmosphere for group dynamics and learning, as well as excellent co-curricular opportunities for student leaders, including involvement activities on campus, community service projects, and interviews with community leaders. The Emerging Leader Class is academically accredited by the Agricultural Leadership Department, and Student Involvement is proud to offer the ELC for the ninth year this Spring.

We encourage students to check out the ELC program. Students will find information and applications at City Campus (200 NU) and East Campus (300 NU) Student Involvement, The Women's Center (340 NU), The Culture Center (333 N 14), and at all residence hall front desks. Remember, applications are due Monday, Oct 21!
