VOLUME 2, NUMBER 3 SPORTSPAGE DECEMBER 1996

DOING IT...

Dressage doesn't refer to Heidi Basler's wardrobe. Rather, dressage is the Olympic equestrian event that Basler has competed in since she was eight years old.

Dressage competitors put their steeds through a series of drills designed to showcase a horse's training, submissiveness, flexibility and power—and the rider's skills, too. Horses are expected to trot, pirouette—even skip in midair. Basler earned eighth place this year in the North American Young Rider Championships. She also helped her team win the bronze medal.

Basler plans to spend the summer of 1997 in Statesville, North Carolina, with her trainer. Amid all the hours spent practicing, the sophomore computer engineering major still finds time to maintain a 3.8 GPA.
