

Texas shocks Huskers

ably would happen is they would get some yards throwing the ball," Osborne said. "We didn't feel like they would be able to run on us as well as they did. That we thought was the main difference."

Mackovic said the difference in the game was the Longhorns' quick-strike ability, opposed to the Huskers, who averaged 12 plays per drive. Texas, which held the ball for only 20:25 and 57 plays to NU's 39:35 and 87 plays, averaged six plays per drive.

"We didn't give them an easy score, and that was the key," Mackovic said. "They always had to work for it. They would work all that time to just barely catch up, and then we would score that fast."

"Then in the fourth quarter, when they had to try and score in a hurry, they couldn't do it."

Nebraska Defensive Coordinator Charlie McBride agreed with Mackovic, saying the Huskers were never able to slow the Longhorns.

McBride also said the Huskers made too many mistakes, which was disappointing after the success NU's defense had one week earlier in a 17-12 win over Colorado.

The Longhorns added a field goal with 1:23 remaining in the first half to take a 20-17 halftime lead. But after Texas added a 47-yard field goal in the third quarter, Nebraska appeared to gain the momentum.

The Huskers put together a 15-play, 72-yard drive to take a 24-23 lead when Evans scored on a six-yard run with 2:11 remaining in the third quarter.

On the Longhorns' next series, Eric Warfield intercepted Brown at the Nebraska 47-yard line. The Husker offense moved the ball to the Texas 4, but on third and goal, Frost fumbled a pitch to Evans. Evans recovered, but Nebraska had to settle for a 24-yard field goal and a 27-23 lead.

Texas' quick-strike ability hit again when the Longhorns went 80 yards in three plays, scoring to take a 30-27 lead. Facing a second and 13 from the UT 34, Brown found wide receiver Wane McGarity for 66 yards, lofting a pass over Minter.

Minter, who had played the whole game at linebacker, was playing rover because of an injury to Warfield.

"Of course, he hadn't worked at safety all week," Osborne said. "He just misjudged the ball. He obviously hadn't been playing the deep ball the last two weeks, and I'm sure if he had a little bit of practice there, he might have been all right."

Nebraska took the ensuing kick-off and moved the ball to the Texas 38-yard line. On fourth and four, the Huskers decided to go for the first down, but an illegal procedure penalty pushed the ball back to Texas 43, forcing NU to punt.

UT was pinned at its own 4 yard-line, but Brown completed an eight-yard pass under heavy pressure in the end zone to Pat Fitzgerald. Five plays later, Brown hit Lewis for the fourth-down back-breaker.

"We went from the penthouse to the outhouse overnight," McBride said. "I thought in every game we have played this year, we have played well — except this one. We never slowed them down any."

3 Huskers earn honors

From Staff Reports

Kari Uppinghouse, a midfielder on the Nebraska soccer team, has been named one of 12 first-team All-Americans by the NSCAA.

Uppinghouse, a 5-foot-11 junior from Littleton, Colo., broke Nebraska's single-season scoring record this fall with 48 points on 19 goals.

Freshman forward Lindsay Eddleman was named to the second team, and junior goalkeeper Becky Hornbacher made the third team.

The Huskers lost to Portland in the NCAA Tournament quarterfinals, ending their third season of play with a record of 23-1 and a No. 5 ranking.

Russell, Pine lead Huskers

Nebraska senior Julia Russell completed a sweep of the breaststroke events by winning the 100-yard competition Sunday at the Jamail Texas Swimming Center in Austin, Texas.

No team scoring was kept in the third day of the Texas Invitational, but other NU winners this weekend included Juan Benavides, Adam Pine, Benji Lodholm, Josh Mathias, Chris Ford and Justin Kapinus on the men's side.

Pine, a freshman, broke an NU record Friday in the 100-yard butterfly with a time of 47.47 seconds.

Husker winners on the women's side included Russell and freshman Sara Jowsey, who won the 400-yard individual medley.

by Kate Crnich.

But Nebraska lost its momentum in the second game. With the score 12-6 in NU's favor, the Razorbacks went on a 9-0 run, closing the game on an Osborne kill. Arkansas hit .305 for the game, taking advantage of the Huskers' outside blocking troubles.

NU regained control in games three and four. Nebraska's Maria Hedbeck scored the first point of the game three, and the Huskers never relinquished their lead, holding the Lady Razorbacks to .125 hitting.

Game four was more of the same for Nebraska. With NU leading 9-7, Hedbeck stepped up again at the serving line and reeled off five straight points in a run that included two kills and a block by Crnich.

But it was Reitsma who dominated the final game. NU's outside hitter — who converted on all 10 of her kill attempts — said she elevated her play in the final two games of the match.

"I knew we just needed to push through it," Reitsma said. "I knew I had to be there emotionally and physically to pick the team up."

Despite the loss, Arkansas Coach Chris Poole was pleased with his team's effort.

"I didn't know what to expect," Poole said. "We came out and played well with one of the best programs in the country. It's just one more step for our program."

Pettit wasn't nearly as pleased. "I'm mostly disappointed in our defense," Pettit said. "We're not a great offensive team. We hit .406, but our strength is our defense."

"To hit .406 and still have Arkansas in the match is not what we wanted."

Tickets for the East Regional can be purchased as a package at the NU ticket office for $14 (lower seats) and $10 (upper seats). Individual tickets sold at the coliseum cost $8 and $6.

flu bug, forcing him to sit out Friday against Coppin State. Garner scored just five points in 22 minutes Saturday.

With 21 seconds left, senior Mikki Moore followed a Lue free-throw miss with a dunk to give the Huskers a 72-68 lead.

"I just sat there and waited on it," Moore said. "He usually makes his free throws, so I don't get much practice. It's just instinct."

Moore, also an all-tournament selection along with Adonal Foyle of Colgate, Coppin State's Terquin Mott and Bowling Green's Antonio Daniels, blocked a team-high three shots Saturday and set a school record with nine rejections against Coppin State Friday. Moore's 179 career blocks are just four short of Rich King's school record of 183.

The Huskers will take the court for the fourth time in nine days on Wednesday, when they play Missouri-Kansas City at 7:30 p.m. in Kansas City.
