Execs push attendance, senate approves bills

By KASEY KERBER
Staff Reporter

The Association of the Students of the University of Nebraska's first meeting of the year also was its shortest of the 1996-1997 academic year — only 11 minutes long.

With ASUN President Eric Marintzer absent from the meeting, First Vice President Jason Bynum presided over the short meeting.

Bynum read a note left by Marintzer stressing better attendance by ASUN senators.

Bynum also stressed the point, saying that several senators were "borderline" with the amount of absences they had accumulated from the first semester.

"We have a lot of graduate students, and that's part of the problem," Bynum said. "You can't really blame them. We'll work it out."

ASUN also passed two bills unanimously.

Government Bill No. 9 passed the 1996-1997 Electoral Commission's rules for the upcoming ASUN elections.

Senate Bill No. 14 recognized the student organizations of Phi Eta Sigma, Alies (sic) Against Heterosexism & Homophobia and the Agronomy Graduate Student Association.

ASSAULT

A group of transients drinking underneath an overpass erupted into a fight Monday night, and one man ended up with his pants stolen and burns on his legs.

Walter Babcock, 42, called police around 10 p.m. to report that he had been assaulted by two men underneath the Sun Valley Boulevard overpass over west O Street. He had his wallet, identification and a pair of pants stolen.

When officers arrived, they noticed Babcock — who was wearing a different pair of burned pants — also had burns on his legs. He was then taken to the St. Elizabeth Hospital's burn unit.

Police records said Babcock reported he was thrown into the fire, but Capt. Doug Srb said officers were not sure his statement was valid because Babcock had been drinking.

"There was a fire, and he got burned," Srb said.

Police were working on suspects and leads.

Snow, wind force Robak to cancel news conferences

By The Associated Press

Nebraska's up-and-down winter weather turned side-to-side on Wednesday, as wind gusts of up to 50 mph whipped snow across the state and created near blizzard conditions.

It was the second major arctic blast to cross the state in two weeks.

Winds gusted to 49 mph at Alliance Wednesday afternoon and wind chills reached as low as 15 below zero in Omaha. They were expected to drop further during the night.

The conditions forced Lt. Gov. Kim Robak to cancel a trip through parts of the east. She had planned news conferences in Beatrice, Fremont, Norfolk and Sioux City, Iowa, following Gov. Ben Nelson's State of the State address to the Legislature.

Nelson's flights were not grounded. A planned trip west from Lincoln to Grand Island, Kearney, North Platte and Scottsbluff went according to schedule.

In fact, the sun was shining on Gordon in the northwestern part of the state. Sure, it was 28 degrees, but wind gusts of up to 46 mph made it feel like the mercury had drained from the thermometers there.

The National Weather Service also suggested motorists stay off Nebraska's roads. Visibility was low and light cars or trucks could end up blown into ditches.

A 79-year-old St. Edward man was killed in a two-vehicle accident that may have been caused by high winds in Boone County. Deane Verhaege was killed when his car collided nearly head-on with a pickup truck on Nebraska Highway 39 early Monday.

The National Weather Service issued a blizzard/winter storm warning Wednesday afternoon for northeastern Nebraska. Dangerous wind chills were expected to continue into Thursday morning in the north central and eastern parts of the state.

A winter storm warning for blowing snow and dangerous wind chills was issued for the north central and southeast parts of the state. Temperatures were expected to drop to near zero by Thursday morning with wind chills between 35 and 45 below zero.
