

Jumpin' Kate on a mission to new home in Georgia

JUMPIN' from page 9

For Fritz Gibson, took loyalty to a new level when he began playing bass with Jumpin' Kate last May.

"I've been a big fan of hers for a long time," he said. "I first saw her at Cafe Le Shakes when I was still in high school. Besides playing with REM, this is my biggest dream ever. I can't think of a better songwriter."

He added that he thought the move was a positive thing for Boner.

"The music scene in Lincoln is in shambles. A lot of the bands that have been mainstays are dissolving," he said. "The way this city is isn't good for Katie. Every band that broke out of Lincoln had to leave to do it."

Andy Fairbairn, booking agent at Duffy's and recent UNL graduate, agreed that the move would be good for her, but no one would be able to fill the void her departure would create.

"Lincoln's losing one of its few female voices. But I think it's good for Lincoln's losing one of its few female voices. But I think it's good for her to get her music across to some new people," he said. "But there will be a void. She'll never be replaced. There will never be another Jumpin' Kate." Jumpin' Kate has one more Lincoln performance before heading off to the land of peaches. She'll be at Mo Java Cafe, 2713 N. 48th St., Saturday at 8 p.m.

UPC orders grade-A amusement

By ANN STACK
Senior Reporter

Expect serpents, rock bands, comedians and more this spring from the University Program Council.

UPC, an organization composed of students, is on a mission to bring top-notch entertainment to UNL.

This Saturday, UPC and the Afrikan Peoples' Union is co-sponsoring speaker Philip Walker for the Martin Luther King Jr. Banquet. That will be held in the Centennial Room at the Nebraska Union.

Next Thursday, the union gets live courtesy of Omaha's Blue Moon Ghetto. Roots-rockers. The Wonsers, a wonderfully fresh band from Minneapolis, opens the show at 9 p.m. in the Centennial Room.

There's a game of Supermarket Bingo, where the prizes are edible, in the East Campus Union Jan. 24, and Jan. 30 Jay Friedman will present a "Sex Matters" speech at 8 p.m. in the Nebraska Union's Centennial Room.

The Racial Minority Leadership Conference, co-sponsored by the Office of Student Involvement with guest speaker Marlon Smith, is Feb. 1 at 1 p.m. at the Wick Alumni Center.

Feb. 6 brings the return of Thursday Night Crib shows with singer/songwriter Jen Cohen. These are in the South Crib at 9 p.m.

UPC and the Chinese Students Scholars Association team up to celebrate the Chinese New Year on Feb. 7, and "Maborosi" shows Feb. 9 as part of the International Film Series.

Brainwaves, an improvisational audience participation-based comedy troupe, will perform Feb. 13 in the Crib, and the following week the Office of Campus Recreation presents a chess tournament.

The film "Bye Bye" will be shown Feb. 23, and Rape Awareness Week is recognized Feb. 26 with an interactive discussion by Katy Koestner. A dance, aptly called the Snow Ball, will be at the East Campus Union Feb. 28.

Shakespeare visits UNL March 8 and 9 with a showing of "Twelfth Night." Comedian Renee Hicks, who's appeared on HBO, brings her comic commentary on social issues March 13, and Gil White talks about some cheap spring break travel options for penniless students on March 20.

Singer/songwriter Stuart Davis comes to the Crib on April 3. Passing Zone, a comic juggling team, comes April 10.

Herps Alive, an amphibian program presented by herpetologist Keith Gisser, makes a full-day stop in the union April 14.

Crib Nights finish on a high note April 17 with karaoke, and there's a chili feed April 18 at the East Campus Union.

A Chicano Awareness Dance co-sponsored by the Mexican-American Student Association will be sometime in April, as well as the final two international films, "The Silence of the Palace" on April 13 and "The Magic Hunter" on April 27.

Remember, these events are free with student ID. You pay the fees, you may as well take advantage of them.
