'Seinfeld' leads pack at SAG Awards

LOS ANGELES (AP)— The cast of "Seinfeld" was named best ensemble in a TV comedy Saturday and the show's Julia Louis-Dreyfus won a best actress honor as the Screen Actors Guild saluted the best of television and film.

"My name is Jerry Seinfeld, and I am a bad actor," the show's namesake said in accepting the ensemble award.

"But I think I have proven convincingly that you can do very well in our business if you are smart enough to surround yourself with these spectacular talents that I have here beside me."

In film, Geoffrey Rush of "Shine" and Frances McDormand of "Fargo" won best actor and best actress, respectively, for their roles in the two independent movies.

"Two of my goals as an actor are to confound expectations and to gain the respect of my peers," McDormand said. "And if that's what you're telling me tonight, thank you very much, I'm very grateful."

Rush, who portrayed eccentric pianist David Helfgott, said he felt as if someone was about to wake him from a dream: "To all of you guys, to be in your company, I can't quite express what that means."

The third annual SAG awards were determined by a vote of the guild's 86,000 members in five film categories and eight TV categories. Along with the Golden Globes, they are closely watched for hints of who might win Academy Awards on March 24.

"The English Patient," nominated by the guild in four film categories, didn't win any.

"Seinfeld" led the television field heading into the show but co-stars Michael Richards and Jason Alexander lost the best actor in a TV comedy award to John Lithgow of "3rd Rock from the Sun."

As he accepted, Lithgow saluted Richards, calling him "one of the funniest men on television whom I am shamelessly imitating about 50 percent of the time on '3rd Rock from the Sun.'"

For the second year in a row, Anthony Edwards accepted the award for outstanding cast in a drama series on behalf of "ER" actors.

Dennis Franz of "NYPD Blue" took home the best actor award in the TV drama category.

"This gets a little overwhelming, and I thank you so very, very much," Franz said, calling it "a blessing" to work with fellow cast member Jimmy Smits, who was also nominated in the category.

Gillian Anderson was named best actress in a drama for her role on "The X-Files."

On the movie side, Cuba Gooding Jr. won a best supporting actor award for his role in "Jerry Maguire" and Lauren Bacall for her supporting performance in "The Mirror Has Two Faces." The actors from "The Birdcage" won the best film cast award.

Alan Rickman won a best actor award in a TV movie or miniseries for "Rasputin." Kathy Bates was named best actress in a TV movie or miniseries for "The Late Shift," about the late-night television wars.

Actress Angela Lansbury won a SAG lifetime achievement award for her longtime involvement with charities.

'Empire Strikes Back' enhances epic engagement

adjustments in scene sequences, as well as a few seconds of added footage.

Despite the media's focus on the improvements of Cloud City, the true strength of the doctored "Empire" lies on the "ice-cube" planet, Hoth.

From the self-destructing Imperial probe droid to the Millennium Falcon's last-second escape from the rebel base, Hoth resonates with booming clarity, technological gusto, and a more menacing Imperial invasion.

The first scene of significance lies with Luke in the wampa cave. The munching of the snowbeast as it feasts on Luke's tantan fills the theater as Luke hangs from the cave's ceiling. The scene progresses allowing the audience a longer view of the bloody wampa.

Enhancing the special effects and sound sequence was a priority

The Facts

Film: "The Empire Strikes Back"
Stars: Harrison Ford, Mark Hamill, Carrie Fisher, Billy Dee Williams, Anthony Daniels
Director: Irvin Kershner
Rating: PG (violence)
Grade: A
Five Words: "Empire" strikes back with detail for Lucas. He frequently accomplished a wind-tunnel effect.

Although "The Empire Strikes Back" is a favorite of many for obvious and numerous reasons, the re-release of the film pales next to the effort put into the original "Star Wars." However, the visually striking and near-deafening Hoth sequence, as well as the additional footage of the touristy Cloud City creates a bigger, better and indulgently ominous "Empire."

tions Department, and UNL Professor Quentin Faulkner, also a member of the Arts Committee.

"A goal of the committee of the arts is to remind ourselves and others of the role of arts in religion," Shively said.

Fagan said the display was a way of looking at the history of the congregation's beliefs.

Pippa White Lawson, parishioner at the church, organized the English tea. Lawson said the food prepared by volunteer members of the church was a result of her British background.

landish physical comedy, falling and prancing with childish joy.

Cecily Smith, in the role of Argon's daughter, managed to evoke some sympathy for her character's plight over the arranged marriage. However, her obnoxious wailing often distracted from the quips between Hurst and McLaine.

Eric Harrell, as Cleante, Smith's suitor, exuded charm with his flamboyant gestures and pouting. His performance in the "impromptu" opera toward the end of Act 1 showcased his comic talent.

Jeremy Stanbary also won some laughs in his role as Thomas Diafoirus, Smith's betrothed. His quivering lips and haughty stance contrasted Harrell's character well, but his lines often seemed to be swallowed in his attempt at gawkiness.

Act 2 lacked the momentum of Act 1 as Moliere waxed philosophic about his views on the medical profession. One of the few highlights was the scene between Argon's younger daughter, played by Michelle Eckley, and Hurst. From the moment she entered, Eckley matched the temper and childishness of Hurst. Their comic finger play provided a release from the dry lines aimed at the hypocrisy of doctors.

The men, clad in their cravats and tights, provided a humorous contrast to the less sophisticated tones of the play.
