and the subject of several pranks. Can she ever recover? Oh no! "Bulletproof" — Adam Sandler and Damon Wayans team up in one of those "cop-and-criminal-become-friends" movies. The crook (Sandler) who lives life to the fullest gets stuck with the ass-tighter-than-a-wet-suit cop (Wayans) while both are being chased by lots and lots of bad guys. Gosh, haven't we seen this before? "Bulletproof" is a waste of talent, time, money, fossil fuels, whatever. "Two Days In the Valley" — Hmph. Another "Pulp Fiction" wannabe flick. We have assassins, art dealers and vice cops, all in separate tales woven together over two hours. Guest stars abound, including Danny Aiello, Glenna Headley and (the film's highlight performer) James Spader. PICK-OF-THE-WEEK — Cuddle up, people. Break out some hot chocolate, get wrapped up in a comforter or blanket with someone special and pop a romantic movie in the VCR. The movie to watch? "When Harry Met Sally." Full of funny facts of life and loads of lovable characters, "When Harry Met Sally" rises high above the majority of other romantic movies for its excellent blend of drama, romance and laughter.

Pet to perform at Ranch Bowl

"Tori was a fresh ear," Papineau said. "She'd listen to us and make suggestions some days, then wear big hats and poke us with sticks on others. She was a good person to clean things up." Because Bates played bass on the album as well as guitar, Pet knew they were going to have to find a bassist for live performances. Papineau said the band had given up hope for finding one, after auditioning dozens of people, until Juan Alderete (formerly of Racer X) showed up. Papineau said Alderete was perfect to fill their slot. "He's a bass player's bass player," she said. Pet will play the Omaha's Ranch Bowl, 1600 S. 72nd St., at 9 p.m., followed by Starbelly and Johnny Clueless. Tickets are $6.
