

Huskers hope to repeat history

game." In the two games against the Tigers, Doage had 23 points and forced 11 steals. As a team, the Huskers caused 60 MU turnovers, including a season-high 37 in Lincoln. Missouri averages 24.3 miscues per game.

But the young Tigers — who start only one senior and have this and last year's conference freshman of the year — have matured since those January meetings, MU Coach Joann Rutherford said.

"Anything can happen," Rutherford said. "You just have to prepare and come out and play like this is a game that can lead you on to another game or this is your last game. You just have to come out and give it all you've got."

A win for NU helps to solidify the Huskers' chance at making history by making their second straight NCAA appearance.

A loss to the Tigers probably ends a once-promising season that started with a school-record nine consecutive wins and a 16-1 record.

"We don't talk about it (the NCAA's), not yet," Beck said. "I really think we've got to prove it first. We have some things to prove here before we talk about it."

"We have to win this one. This win would be a big win for that. Definitely."

Oklahoma State Coach Dick Halterman said the Cornhuskers — with 18 wins and a victory over No. 14 Texas Tech — are in the tournament despite their recent woes.

"Five teams should be in the tournament," Halterman said. "Nebraska has done the things that should get them in."

Along with NU, Iowa State (16-10 and 9-7) and Kansas State (16-10 and 9-7) are on the bubble. So only one of the two teams might make the tourney.

Texas Coach Jody Conradt said she believes because of the league's infancy, probably only five teams will be playing after this weekend.

"We've got six or seven teams that are as good as any other 64 teams in the country," Conradt said.

Nelson's work pays off

Championships in Stanford, Calif., scoring a 9.825 and earning All-America honors.

This season, Nelson said he has gained confidence from training more consistently.

"It's nice to come off last year and win," he said. "It was hard last year because I wasn't healthy until the end of the season."

Allen said Nelson had the potential to gain All-America honors again this season on the pommel horse, the floor, the high bar and the parallel bars.

But Nelson's most important contribution may be an intangible one, Allen said.

"I think he's going to be a great inspiration for my team," Allen said. "Because he's hurt a lot and he just keeps coming back."

Individual accomplishments aside, Nelson said the greatest reward of this season was just being able to compete in the sport he loves.

"I guess it just makes it all seem worthwhile," Nelson said. "All the days in the gym, all the hours you spend — even the rough days — the bad days when you feel like you don't even want to go into the gym. Then you come out and have a meet like this and it all comes together."
