

Bloodhound Gang 'blew the lid off' Ranch Bowl concert

By CHRIS THOMAS AND PAT MINER
Music Critics

"Motherfin' dang, it's the Bloodhound Gang."

This was the chant, led by Nerf Herder lead singer and guitarist Parry Gripp, that filled the Ranch Bowl before the Bloodhound Gang took the stage there Friday night.

22 Jacks opened the show with a couple of sub-par songs off their debut album. The lead singer belted out the lyrics at the top of his lungs while urging the uncooperative teen-age crowd to jump to the music. 22 Jacks' set was rather predictable, with the exception of a charged cover of the Police song "Message in a Bottle." For the most part, this band put a lot of energy into its set, but the unexcitable crowd put a damper on its efforts.

Nerf Herder, a trio from Santa Barbara, Calif., soon took the stage with "Down on Haley," the first track from its self-titled debut release.

Despite more satirical lyrics, the band's sound has drawn numerous references to Weezer, a comparison Gripp definitely doesn't mind. The band's humor showed through on such songs as "Van Halen," where Gripp sings about the new addition of Sammy Hagar to one of his previously favorite bands.

The tempo of the set slowed down when Nerf Herder played "Nosing Girl," a track that warranted the unveiling of the crowd's cigarette lighter collection. The band soon flowed into its current single, "Sorry," a song that was originally meant to be an innocent love poem but soon became a hilarious staple to its shows.

The band finished with "Golfshirt," a guitar-driven track that closed its set in excellent fashion, and was a good contrast to the rap-centered Bloodhound Gang that was soon to follow.

With Spanky G on drums and DJ Q-Ball working his turntable into a Beck remix, Evil Jerod, Lupus and Jimmy Pop Ali took stage. The "Where it's At" scratch-up gave the Bloodhound Gang a perfect segue to tear into its first cut, "Kiss Me Where It Smells Funny."

In the words of David Letterman, Bloodhound Gang "blew the lid off that dump," with all its staple songs from "One Fierce Beer Coaster," including "I Wish I Was Queer So I Could Get Chicks," "Fire Water Burn" and "Why's Everybody Always Pickin' On Me," which also will be its next single.

Its set list included a faster-tempo "Your Only Friends Are Make Believe" and "You're Pretty When I'm Drunk," a song from its previous album "Use Your Fingers." The fact that it was an early show unfortunately cut its set list short, leaving out several covers and a remake of the theme from "Kids Incorporated."

This group of guys has been together for about a year and a half, while the Bloodhound Gang itself dates back four years to Philadelphia. Just like its music, the band is trapped in the quicksand of sarcasm, an attitude that transfers from the recording studio to the stage to backstage.

"We're crazy dope addicts," quipped lead guitarist Lupus.

When asked to describe the band's sound, Q-Ball responded with flavor: "Rap, rap, rap provocative," an original remix.

The band said between Jerod's alcoholism and Spanky G's pot habit it wonders how it gets anything done.
