takedowns with more than 700 in his career.

NU signed two wrestlers in November, both of which are expected to wrestle at 118. Kyle Canoyer, younger brother to Husker 134-pounder Brad Canoyer, should redshirt next season, Neumann said.

Canoyer was the national high-school champion at 119 pounds. He also was a two-time Iowa state champion out of Riverside High School. He won the 1996 112-pound crown and the 1997 125-pound title, finishing his career 127-13.

Paul Gomez, a junior-college national champion in 1996, will transfer to Nebraska and is expected to be next year's starter at 118, Neumann said. Gomez is enrolled at Lassen College in Susanville, Calif.

Before the signing day, NU was ranked sixth in the next season's pre-season poll. Neumann said the Huskers are hoping to sign one more wrestler before the middle of next week.

Broxsie, Smith has not qualified academically.

Cochran visited Lincoln last week-end after attending Nebraska's 85-65 loss to Kansas on March 2 at the Bob Devaney Sports Center. The No. 1 all-time scorer in Iowa high school history said he enjoyed his meetings with Husker players and coaches.

"People get a lot of misconceptions about Coach Nee," Cochran said. "I had never met him until this year, but once I got to know him, it was like a spark and it caught ahold of me. There was something about Danny Nee, and it pulled me toward him."

At 175 pounds, Cochran has hit the weights hard in the last year, he said, and would still like to add some strength and 10 to 15 pounds after enrolling at Nebraska.

"I've gotten to the point where I can push people around at this level," he said, "but college will be a lot different."

Cochran achieved the highest level of success at Tri Center High School, scoring 2,650 points in 93 career games, and averaging 33 points, eight assists and 6.6 rebounds per game as a senior. For his career, he scored more than 20 points 81 times and led his school to a 76-17 record and a pair of state-tournament appearances.

At Nebraska, he said, he'll be happy to play a contributing role as point guard Tyronn Lue pesters opponents with his speed. Lue's quickness may leave Cochran open on the perimeter, where he made 352 of 851 3-point attempts in high school.

"Tyronn Lue can break down a defense and kick it back out," Cochran said. "At Nebraska, I'm not going to have three guys draped all over me, and who better to learn from and try to establish myself with than Tyronn Lue?"

Williams, from The Kinkaid School, a private institution in Houston, averaged 21 points, nine assists and five rebounds as a senior. He said he felt relieved to finally sign his letter of intent Wednesday morning.

"It feels real good," he said. "Now I can sit back and enjoy the rest of senior year."

Williams also visited NU last month, when he met Cochran and Smith. Last summer at a tournament in Colorado Springs, Colo., Williams played with Brant Harriman, a 6-11 center from Mason City, Iowa, who signed with Nebraska last November.

"Once they see me and I start working out, I will be able to contribute right away. I feel like Nebraska is right on the edge of getting into the NCAA Tournament and becoming a dominant force in the Big 12."
