

Sergeant offers safety tips for moving out

By KASEY KERBER
Staff Reporter

Moving out of the residence halls and greek houses might be a relief to some students, but property theft during the move could make the experience far from relieving.

University of Nebraska-Lincoln Police Sgt. Mylo Bushing said theft could be avoided if students took proper safety precautions.

One such precaution, Bushing said, is for students to avoid packing up their vehicles the day before they leave.

Bushing said a better option would be to load up vehicles on Saturday morning.

"If students can't do this, then loading items into the trunk is a safer option," Bushing said.

Students leaving their vehicles unlocked or unattended is another common mistake, Bushing said.

Bushing said criminals have stolen everything from stereos to full suitcases in the time it took students to run upstairs and back.

"If you don't have a friend or relative watching the car, then lock it," Bushing said.

Finally, Bushing said residence hall rooms must be secure when students are making trips downstairs or to the car.

"You have to protect yourself on both ends," Bushing said. "People are able to get in and out of the dorms quite easily, so security is more of a concern."

But if students have property stolen, Bushing advises them to file a report with the police department immediately.

"The officer might be able to question other people in the vicinity," Bushing said.

Copying down model and serial numbers can also help in the recovery process for stolen goods, he said.

FELONY ASSAULT

A man was hit by a car Monday, the victim of an intentional hit and run, police said.

Reginald Smith, a 34-year-old transient, was walking down 18th Street between D and C streets at 3:18 p.m. when he was struck, Lincoln Police Sgt. Ann Heermann said.

She said witnesses told police they saw a car run a stop sign on northbound 18th Street, turn around, come back southbound and hit Smith. Smith reportedly flipped onto the hood and over the car.

Three hours later, police booked Russell Shehorn, 39, of 353 S. 26th St., for first-degree assault and use of a weapon to commit a felony.

Smith was taken to Lincoln General Hospital where he was treated for a broken wrist and cuts on his head and chest.

IN COURT

Jennifer Hindera, facing manslaughter charges in connection with the death of her boyfriend's son, was bound over for a Lancaster County District Court arraignment Tuesday.

Hindera was charged Feb. 18 in connection with the death of 17-month-old Jeffrey Ireland, who died of head trauma. Hindera allegedly told police that she shook the child and set him down hard after she became upset.

Hindera's arraignment date has not yet been set. She has been out on bond.
