

Coke says it didn't have Pepsi's options

UNL didn't give drink company chance to bid on 12-year contract

Association of Students of the University of Nebraska, is the only student to serve on the committee, which includes all UNL vice chancellors, Academic Senate President Jim Ford, Athletic Director Bill Byrne, a Pepsi representative and other select university faculty and staff.

Jones said the committee will hold its first meeting in September.

Klein said the same committee will also help decide how the foundation spends $550,000 each year. Another committee consisting of Chancellor James Moeser and the UNL vice chancellors will make the final decision, she said.

The contract requires that the university spend interest from the $11 million endowment on projects including scholarships, community service and outreach, increasing campus diversity, academic enhancements, athletic and recreational activities and support for Title IX gender equity laws.

Jones said these priorities would also govern spending of the university's annual $1.1 million.

Watmore said a small part of the $1.1 million has already been spent to repair vending machine areas. Under the Pepsi contract, the university is responsible for providing electrical outlets and service for all vending machines and for keeping vending machine areas in good repair.

Pepsi has added several new vending machines and three new vending areas on campus.

The contract states Pepsi must provide all beverages served by the university except for tap water, coffee or tea catered at university events and alcoholic beverages, which Pepsi does not offer.

Privately catered events at the university may serve competitors' products, the contract states, but all leftover bottles, cans or other evidence of the beverages served must be "promptly removed at the conclusion of the event."

Burger King continues to serve Coca-Cola products at its Nebraska Union location, said Daryl Swanson, Nebraska Union director.

Burger King's national chain serves Coca-Cola products, and the Nebraska Union Burger King will continue to serve Coca-Cola until its contract for union space expires on July 1, 1998.

If Burger King wishes to use the space after next summer, it will have to go against its national standard and serve Pepsi products, Swanson said. He said Burger King officials said they would likely sell Pepsi to keep their space in the union.

Amigos, Imperial Palace Express and Subway, also in Nebraska Union, sell Pepsi products, Swanson said.

The union's Bakery stopped selling Coca-Cola products this summer, he said.

The Nebraska East Union food area also serves only Pepsi, he said, as do the express food carts in various campus buildings.

The change in vending machines resulted in eight UNL vending services employees losing their jobs July 1.

Watmore, the liaison to Pepsi, said the two students and six staff members affected were offered jobs in other areas of the university. All but one employee took pay cuts to remain at the university.

Pepsi granted a job interview to the employee who did not accept a university position, Watmore said. The contract required Pepsi to consider those university employees that lost their jobs in the beverage switch for positions in vending at the company.

Pepsi didn't intend for university employees to suffer from the switch, Watmore said.

"You couldn't ask for better people to work with than the Pepsi people," she said.
