Opera seduces Lied

■ 'Carmen,' a tale of a sultry gypsy girl who breaks men's hearts, will be showing tonight.

By JASON M. HARDY
Staff Reporter

Western Opera Theater — in a fashion similar to the roving people it portrays — makes an encampment tonight at the Lied Center for Performing Arts.

Action and entertainment are sure to follow.

The company's performance features the seductive power of the sultry gypsy girl Carmen.

Western Opera Theater — San Francisco Opera's transitory band — brings its version of George Bizet's "Carmen" to the Lied at 8 p.m.

Norah Goebel-George, Lied Center director of marketing and media relations, said "Carmen" was an incredible opera receiving an overwhelming response from Lincoln residents.

"There really are a lot of opera lovers in our community," Goebel-George said. "When a good one is touring, we snatch it up."

The plot is simple but deadly. Carmen arouses the darkest passions in all she meets and seduces the young soldier Don Jose, only to cast him away into a void of heartbroken nothingness.

The results are deadly. Shelly Crawford, who will play Carmen Wednesday, said playing the wild child pushed her vocally and mentally.

"Musically, it's a little more difficult," Crawford said. "Psychologically, she's just a difficult character to figure out."

Though the show physically is very demanding and the largest she has been part of, Crawford finds relief in the fact that the production tours with three complete casts. The role of Carmen is shared between three different women who either sing in the chorus or play Mercedes, one of Carmen's friends.

Crawford said sharing a role was difficult to get used to but that it was a good way too keep everybody healthy.

"It's helpful. It would be too much pressure to do the lead every night," Crawford said.

Two 15-minute pre-performance talks will be given at 7:05 and 7:30 in the Lied Center's Steinhart Room as part of its ongoing education and outreach programming. Alexandra Hunt will lead the talks, which will focus on the songs, cast and other facts of "Carmen." The talks are open to anyone attending the show.

Tickets for the opera are $38, $34 and $30. UNL students can purchase tickets for half-price.
