Frost loses 2nd coach

BY ANTONE OSEKA
 Senior Reporter

For one Nebraska football player, the resignation of a college football coach is nothing new.

Quarterback Scott Frost had his coach leave before.

When Frost chose Stanford out of high school, he went there to play under Bill Walsh, considered to be one of the greatest minds in the game of football. Before Frost transferred to Nebraska, Walsh retired from football altogether.

"I kind of look back and kick myself a little," Frost said. "I've had a chance to experience more than one coach. There's no way like Coach Osborne did it."

Several times this season, Osborne has defended Frost, saying he's one of Nebraska's best-ever quarterbacks.

Walsh, on the other hand, moved Frost to defensive back. Frost made the change back to quarterback when he transferred to Nebraska.

"It's not even really close," Frost said comparing the two coaches. "This is a man who's done everything in college football stepping down."

"I don't even want to compare the two."

Wisconsin trip gives DeForge homecoming

BY JAY SAUNDERS
 Assignment Reporter

For senior Anna DeForge, it's time to get out the cheese mug, the cheese head and the Brett Favre jersey.

DeForge is going home.

The No. 13 NU women's basketball team continues its four-game road trip this weekend with two games in DeForge's home state of Wisconsin.

Tonight the Huskers (8-2) play Wisconsin-Green Bay (5-2) at 7.

NU then travels to Milwaukee for a 7 p.m. game against Wisconsin-Milwaukee (4-4) Saturday.

This trip keeps a promise made to DeForge by former NU Coach Angela Beck when DeForge decided to come to Nebraska from the tiny town of Niagara, Wis.

"I am honored and excited to play two games in my home state," DeForge said. "It will be exciting to go back home and play in front of people that haven't seen me play."

All of the 2,000 tickets have been sold at UWGB's Phoenix Sports Center. In Milwaukee, DeForge said, a lot of people will help make a road game feel more like the Bob Devaney

 "This will be a great atmosphere to play on the road," DeForge said. "I think we will have a home-court advantage."

A home court may be just what the Huskers need. Both of NU's losses this year have come away from the Devaney Center. This weekend, at the Insight Women's Basketball Classic, the Huskers lost to Arizona by 12 points.

With the Big 12 conference schedule right around the corner, sophomore Charlie Rogers, who scored a career-high 21 points against Arizona, said the Huskers need to play well for 40 minutes against both the Phoenix and the Panthers.

"We need to get a couple of good wins in to get confidence going into the Big 12," Rogers said. "We need to turn it up and be ready to play every game."

DeForge said it is important to play well this weekend. The All-American said it is nice to try to get back on the winning track while going back home.

"It would be nice to get these two road-wins under our belts," DeForge said. "These won't be teams where we can play sub-par and get a victory."

Huskers not overlooking N.D. State

BY SARAH DOSE
 Staff Reporter

North Dakota State might be a Division II school, but that's not a reason to overlook them, Nebraska Wrestling Coach Tim Neumann said.

The No. 5 Husker wrestlers, who just came off a seventh-place finish at the Cliff Keen Championships in Las Vegas, travel to Fargo, N.D., today for a 7:30 p.m. dual with North Dakota State.

Neumann said the team was tired after the championships, so preparation for this dual was a little different.

"We took (Monday) off and just drilled," he said. "But we're going to work hard."

Neumann said this dual, the last before the semester break, can't be taken lightly.

"It's not like it's a meet we can't take seriously," he said. "We do take them seriously."

North Dakota State placed three wrestlers at last weekend's Cliff Keen Championships, Neumann said, and two of their best will wrestle Nebraska's backups.

Currently Brad Cooper, a redshirt freshman from Ogallala, is replacing All-American Temoer Terry at 158 pounds. Terry is ranked No. 1 even though he has yet to wrestle this season.

All-American 142-pounder Brad Canoyer is also on the injured list with a strained medial collateral ligament in his knee. He is ranked No. 7 but is being replaced by Ryan Schultz.

"It should be a good test for Cooper and Schultz," Neumann said.

Other ranked Husker grapplers include senior Jeramie Welder, ninth at 126 pounds, and 177-pounder Brad Vering, who, at No. 11, is the highest-ranked freshman in Husker history.

Neumann said the team hasn't traveled to Fargo, N.D., for six or seven years, but he still remembers the atmosphere.
