Despite quick start, NU outgunned by UT

helped to pace Texas. "This was just a shootout," Texas Coach Tom Penders said. "It was the kind of game that showed just how good Big 12 basketball is."

In addition to Lue, Nebraska's quick start was also aided by the Huskers' ability to shred the zone defense that Texas opened the game with. NU found holes in the zone with ease and jumped out to a 40-30 lead with five minutes to play in the half.

But Texas then instituted a man-to-man defense, which allowed the Longhorns to gain much-needed momentum before halftime. In what proved to be a pivotal point in the contest, Texas scored the final nine points of the half to close the gap to 44-43.

"It was my brain-dead plan to try a zone on them," Penders said. "Finally, we went to our trapping, rotating defense, and that got us going."

Even though they eventually fell short against Texas, the Huskers didn't fail to make a solid impression on their hosts.

"We beat a very good team tonight," Penders said. "Nebraska has been on a roll, and they weren't intimidated coming in here. We're fortunate to come out with a victory."

Nebraska returns home to the Bob Devaney Sports Center to face Iowa State at 12:45 p.m. Saturday. The game will be televised regionally on ESPN.
