Weekend Wrap-Up

Swimmers win Triangular

The seventh-ranked Nebraska women's swimming team captured the Nebraska/Minnesota/Texas A&M Triangular Saturday in Lincoln. The Cornhuskers defeated Texas A&M 236-134 and downed Minnesota 194-176.

The 10th-ranked Golden Gophers took second, outscoring Texas A&M 225-145. Nebraska improved to 5-0 overall.

The Huskers' Lenka Manhalova led the women with a first-place finish in the 200-yard individual medley and a second-place finish in the 200-yard breaststroke.

Manhalova also swam on NU's winning 200-yard medley relay.

Therese Alshammar won the 100-yard freestyle and also swam in the 200-yard medley relay.

Amanda Zins won the 3-meter diving competition with 304.7 points and placed third in the 1-meter contest.

The 16th-ranked Cornhusker men placed second in the meet, defeating A&M 234-134 but falling 230-140 to 15th-ranked Minnesota, which won the meet.

Adam Pine and Valerjis Kalmikovs paced the men. Pine captured the 100-yard freestyle.

Kalmikovs won the 200-yard breaststroke and the 200-yard individual medley.

Danny Bergman won the 1-meter diving competition and placed third in the 3-meter competition.

Nebraska will compete at Kansas Friday and at Missouri Saturday.

Huskers place second at Open

The Rocky Mountain Open provided some peaks and valleys for the Nebraska men's gymnastics team last weekend.

Derek Leiter and Jim Koziol turned in first-place efforts, but injuries to Jason Hardabura and Marshall Nelson—two of NU's top gymnasts—were too much for the Cornhuskers to overcome as No. 17 Brigham Young won the seven-team meet with a score of 226.00. The sixth-ranked Huskers finished second with a score of 224.18.

NU Coach Francis Allen said the hip injury to Hardabura during warm-ups took the wind out of his team.

"We were hurt by Jason's absence," Allen said. "He is one of our top three all-arounders and he was only able to compete on rings for us. His injury was a three-point swing, and we didn't have the depth to compensate for losing a gymnast who can average a 5.7."

One athlete who did his best to compensate was Leiter, a sophomore from Lincoln Southeast. Leiter won the all-around with a score of 57.48 while recording career bests in the vault (9.70) and horizontal bars (9.83).

Another top performance was turned in by Koziol on the still rings. His 9.70 outdistanced second-place Dan Fink of Oklahoma. Koziol's performance was good news for NU after he missed all of last season following shoulder surgery.

Even though the Huskers didn't meet their goal of winning the meet, Allen said it was good to be competing again.

"We are not in that bad of shape, and we will be a lot better when Marshall and Jason get healthy."

Wrestlers fall flat on the mat

The fifth-ranked Nebraska wrestling team fell to No. 7 Oklahoma 20-15 Sunday at the Mini Dome in South Sioux City.

OU improved to 10-5, while the Cornhuskers dropped to 7-4.

Entering the heavyweight match, Nebraska trailed 17-15 until Oklahoma's John Henry Ward put the Huskers away with a 10-4 decision over J.R. Plienis.

"I don't like losing to anybody, much less a Big 12 opponent," Nebraska Coach Tim Neumann said. "There were some reasons why we wrestled flat, but I thought we would be mentally tough enough to fight through it. But obviously we weren't."

NU junior Jose DeAnda, who wrestled in the Mini Dome for the first time since high school, fell to fifth-ranked David Kjeldgaard at 142 pounds.

The Huskers hit the mats again Sunday, when they travel to Ames, Iowa to face ninth-ranked Iowa State.
