ed in cooperation with Lewis and Susan Cuppet, who conducted the taste tests with funding from the North Dakota Oil Seed Council and the U.S. Flax Institute.

Although Omega eggs' health benefits make them appealing, their taste likely will decide whether they will succeed at the grocery store.

Scheideler said the unique fatty acids in the eggs can produce a slight "fishy taste in exceptionally taste-sensitive people."

But manipulating the taste and texture of Omega eggs is "very doable," she said.

Curtis Novak, a graduate student in poultry nutrition who worked extensively on Scheideler's project, said he could not tell any difference between Omega eggs and other "normal" eggs he has eaten.

"They just taste good."

Slow ride

Driver's education courses don't teach you how to drive a stick shift like this one: a Bobcat front-end loader.

After construction workers failed to lock one of their Bobcats inside the chain-link fence around the Nebraska Union, someone took it for a joyride across campus Friday, University Police Sgt. Mylo Bushing said.

Whoever was driving must have learned quickly because no damage was caused.

The loader was found in front of Henzlik Hall later that afternoon. One of the construction workers took the loader back to its chain-link home.

TAKE TECHNOLOGY TO THE NTH POWER.

When something is too extreme for words, it's to the Nth degree. And that's the level of technology you'll experience at Raytheon.

Raytheon has formed a new technological superpower—Raytheon Systems Company, composed of four major technological giants: Raytheon Electronic Systems, Raytheon E-Systems, Raytheon TI Systems and Hughes Aircraft. The new Raytheon Systems Company is driving technology to the limit. And we're looking for engineers who want to push the envelope. Break new ground. Make their mark.

At Raytheon, you'll take technology—and your career—to the highest possible level. You'll take it to the Nth. We'll be visiting your campus soon. Contact your career placement office now to schedule an interview, or check out our website at www.rayjobs.com. If you are unable to meet with us, please send your resume to: Raytheon Staffing, P.O.
