While Lincolmites who lived began digging out from the catastrophic damage caused by a gigantic asteroid collision, NUL students reported to campus for classes as scheduled.

"Nowhere in the university policy handbook does it say anything about canceling classes for asteroids," said Vice Chancellor in the Business of Life Endangerment Mazin Jonzin.

Astronomers said the 50-yard-wide asteroid hit the Tom Osborn Field at Memorial Stadium at Bill Burn$ Square Block at Frank Solick Sidewalk inside the Malt Tonahair Front Doors.

Physicists said the collision was the equivalent to 1,000 Steve Willey farts and did enough damage to cancel classes at every educational institution in Lincoln, Texas and Tibet.

But at NUL, life was as usual.

Students hoping to get the day off to pull rubble off their roommates or see if their families were still alive waited anxiously by radios and televisions for cancellation announcements, but their prayers went unan-
