Game show draws graduate to compete

'Price is Right' lets Lincolnite 'come on down'

BY ASHLEY ANDERSON
Staff writer

Dreams of winning cash and prizes, the itch to spin the big wheel and the lure to "come on down" are all more than enough to draw many people to participate in television game shows.

For Tami Feit, a recent University of Nebraska-Lincoln graduate, a lifelong love for "The Price is Right" motivated her to vie for an appearance on the show.

Feit traveled to Los Angeles in February to play the game, and her appearance will air Monday at 10 a.m.

"I've watched 'The Price is Right' since I was little," Feit said. "It's always been a goal of mine to appear on the show."

According to her fiancé, Alex Williams, Feit's love of the game progressed beyond childhood.

"When she was a (UNL) New Student Enrollment leader, she taped the show while she gave tours," Williams said. "When she came back at night, she watched it fairly religiously."

The day Feit was to see the show, she arrived at the studio at 5:30 a.m., along with other game-show hopefuls.

Feit received a stand-by ticket to sit in the audience — part of a lengthy process — but didn't expect to compete in the show.

Much to her surprise, Feit was one of the first four people that Bob Barker called to the floor to compete.

"I have never experienced that much intensity and nervousness as when he called me down," Feit said.

She won her first game and advanced to the Big Wheel round. She needed to beat the 75-cent spin of a previous competitor to advance to the next phase in the game.

Feit's 85-cent spin landed her a place in the Showcase Showdown.

Before Feit left for Los Angeles in February, Williams joked that if she won a motor home in the Showdown, they would sell it for cash.

Sure enough, Feit's Showcase package included a motor home.

Williams said he couldn't believe the coincidence.

Although Feit didn't win the Showcase Showdown, she has fond memories of being a contestant on "The Price is Right."

"I always promised myself that I'd never do anything dumb, but I ended up kissing Bob Barker on the cheek," she said.

Besides getting the chance to kiss Barker, Feit won a go-cart and a computer.

According to Williams, Feit never doubted that she would appear on the show.

"It was something she always talked about," Williams said. "She always said, 'When I get on 'The Price is Right,' not 'If I get on.'"
