

Education expert to deliver address

From staff reports

An expert on education will give the last words to UNL graduates before they walk across stage and receive their diplomas in a week.

John Goodlad, who is a professor emeritus of education and co-director of the Center for Education Renewal at the University of Washington, will address graduates during the May 8 commencement ceremony.

Along with giving the commencement speech, Goodlad will receive an honorary doctor of humane letters degree.

An author of a book titled "In Praise of Education," Goodlad has been involved in educational reform programs and projects. These projects have included studies of educational change, schooling and the education of teachers.

Along with addressing the value of education in his book, Goodlad argues that education is an unalienable right for everyone in a democracy.

Along with writing "In Praise of Education," Goodlad has written numerous articles in journals and encyclopedias. He won an award for another book he wrote titled "A Place Called School" in 1984.

Commencement ceremonies will begin at 9:30 a.m. on May 8 at the Bob Devaney Sports Center.

Regents

Board considers increasing student fees on 3 campuses

By KIM SWEET
Staff writer

The NU Board of Regents this weekend will decide how much University of Nebraska students will dish out next year in student fees.

The regents will consider whether to approve the student fees recommended by students on each of NU's four campuses at their monthly meeting Saturday at 8:30 a.m. in Varner Hall.

The recommended increase for the Fund B portion of student fees for the University of Nebraska-Lincoln is $14.43 each semester for full-time students. That will increase student fees from $229.73 to $244.16 each semester.

If the recommended increase in Fund B money is approved for the University of Nebraska at Omaha, fees will go from $103.75 a semester to $134.00. If they are approved for the University of Nebraska at Kearney, fees will increase from $146.50 per semester to $198.50 per semester.

If the recommended allocation for the University of Nebraska

Medical Center passes, Fund B fees will stay the same at $107.25 per semester.

Fund B fees pay for the University Program and Facilities Fee, which maintains the upkeep and programming for different campus facilities, such as the Nebraska and East unions, the Campus Recreation Center and the University Health Center.

The regents will also consider approving changes in the UNL student code of conduct.

The proposed changes are intended to make sure action resulting from a complaint or violation of the code is carried out in a timely matter. The revision of the code will also ensure that sanctions against a student match up with the magnitude of the offense.

The Association of Students of the University of Nebraska approved the changes to the code during a meeting last month. The Executive Committee of the Academic Senate as well as the university legal counsel have approved the changes.

The meeting will be held in the Board Room of Varner Hall, 3835 Holdrege Street.
