

School of Music presents Hugo Wolf's 'Mörrike Songs'

focus on his Mörrike songs.

"Wolf's music clearly hits to the point of the poems," Friend said. "His music finds the mood of the poetry."

To help explain that mood, a weekend full of symposium events will precede Sunday's concert.

The symposium will begin at 7 p.m. today with William Shomos giving an introduction to the weekend.

Five UNL students singing five of Wolf's songs will follow at 7:30 p.m. They will be coached by Friend.

Saturday will feature lectures by faculty members Robert Shirer and Joseph Kraus.

Guest lecturers will be David

Breckbill, reviewer for BBC Music Magazine, and Susan Youens, author and professor of musicology at the University of Notre Dame.

Youens will also give a pre-performance lecture on Sunday.

"We have some of the top international experts explaining the concert," Shomos said. "The talks will introduce people to the poet and composer."

Shomos said the lectures before the concert were important so people can understand how Wolf's songs delivered the message of Mörrike's work.

He said Mörrike's songs "explore all facets of what it is to be a human being."

Self-Righteous Brothers to perform at Zoo Bar

They dress in white tuxedos. They claim to be from Scotland. And they have a song titled "Have Fun With Your Penis." They can only be the Self-Righteous Brothers.

This weekend, the Self-Righteous Brothers bring their outrageous, comical rock to the Zoo Bar, 136 N. 14th St.

With names such as Trendy McFadden, Sweet Basil McJagger

Dropped Notes

and Donny McDonald, the group is known for its tongue-in-cheek humor.

They claim to hail from Weatherbee, Scotland, and their biographies detail a facetious, "tear-jerking" tale of childhood abandonment and poverty.

Supposedly, Sunny and Mr. Righteous, the band's two vocalists, are half twins by the same mother (different fathers) who abandoned them at an early age. Their childhoods introduced them to the life of "hard scotch," but luckily the two hooked up with McJagger, McDonald, McFadden, Glom McConoco and Chester McDrawers. Fame was close at hand.

The group's tongue-in-cheek humor carries over into their songs, which poke fun at sex, romance and masturbation.

The band's 1998 album, "Tastee," includes songs such as "Have Fun With Your Penis," "New Monkey Skin Jacket" and a cover of Tom Jones' "She's A Lady."

The Self-Righteous Brothers play tonight and Saturday, starting between 9 and 9:30 p.m. The cover charge is $5.
